PREFACE

IN a review of PL. i/2 which appeared in Oriens 8 (1955) pp. 142–5 (and which contains some addenda eventually, I hope, to be included in one of my lists of additions and corrections) Professor H. Ritter asks two questions in the following words :—

> " Bei der grossen fülle der persischen handschriften in der Türkei fragt man sich doch, ob es praktisch ist, sie einfach zu übergehen. Sollen auch die Istanbuler handschriften persischer dichter später nicht aufgeführt werden ? "

The first of these questions is fortunately rendered less important in regard to the present part of my work by the existence of Max Krause's Stambuler Handschriften islamischer Mathematiker. The second question is not for me to answer. Although I originally had no intention of excluding the poets from my survey, I came to realise some years ago that, while I might succeed in surveying most of the branches of the prose literature, to deal with them all was probably more than I could expect. The position would doubtless have been different, if in the past decade more rapid printing had been possible and larger funds had been available.

I must repeat my thanks to the Trustees of the " E. J. W. Gibb Memorial " for their generous financial support and to those—especially again Professor V. Minorsky—who have kindly sent me information.

January, 1958. C. A. STOREY.

LIST OF AUTHORITIES AND ABBREVIATIONS

[Supplementary to the lists printed in PL. i pp. ix–xxiii, xxiv–xxxv (prefixed to p. 61), [xliv] (facing p. 237), [xlviii] (facing p. 433) and liii–liv (prefixed to p. 781)]

Afshār 1333 = Kitāb-shināsī i Īrān. Farwardīn-Isfand 1333. Gird-āwardah i Īraj i Afshār. (in Farhang i Īrān-zamīn ii (Tihrān 1333/1954–5) pp. 397–400 (introductory) and 1–20 (separately paginated)).

Afshār 1334 = Kitāb-shināsī i Īrān 1334. (French title on back wrapper: Bibliographie de l'Irān. Février 1955-Mars 1956. Par Iraj Afshâr). Tihrān 1335/1956.

A defect from the bibliographical point of view is that the dates actually given on the title-pages or elsewhere in the books themselves, when different from 1334, are not specified (for examples see PL. ii pp. 188^{24}, 189^{10}, 189^{19}).

Āṣafīyah = Kutub-khānah i Āṣafīyah [so called in allusion to the title Āṣaf-jāh borne by the "Niẓāms"] at Ḥaidarābād ("Hyderabad"), Dakan ("Deccan"), India (for the three volumes of the catalogue of Arabic, Persian and Urdu MSS. and printed books, one of the largest Indian collections of such works, see PL. i pp. ix, xxix).

Bodleian iii = Catalogue of the Persian, Turkish, Hindustani and Pushtu manuscripts in the Bodleian Library. Part iii. Additional Persian manuscripts. By A. F. L. Beeston. Oxford 1954.

Cambridge 2nd Suppt. = A second supplementary hand-list of the Muḥammadan manuscripts in the university and colleges of Cambridge. By A. J. Arberry. Cambridge 1952.

Krause = Stambuler Handschriften islamischer Mathematiker. Von Max Krause (see PL. ii p. 1).

Leningrad Acad. i (Miklukho-Maklai) = Akademiya Nauk SSSR. Institut Vostokovedeniya. N. D. Miklukho-Maklai. Opisanie tadzhikskikh i persidskikh rukopisei Instituta Vostokovedeniya [Pt. 1 (see p. 3, l. 26)]. Moscow-Leningrad 1955.

Ma'ārif = Fihrist i kutub i khaṭṭī i Kitāb-khānah i 'Umūmī i Ma'ārif . . . ta'līf i 'Abd al-'Azīz Jawāhir i Kalām [1] (English title on back cover of vol. i: Catalogue of Persian and Arabic manuscripts of the Public Library of the Ministry of Education . . . Arranged by Abdol-Aziz Javaher Kelam), vol. i, Tihrān A.H.S. 1313/1934–5, vol. ii, A.H.S. 1314/1935–6 (Mihr Pr.).

Madrās iii = A descriptive catalogue of the Islamic manuscripts in the Government Oriental Manuscripts Library, Madras. By T. Chandrasekharan . . . Curator . . . and the staff of the Library [i.e., so far as this volume is concerned, "Janab Muhammad Yousuf Kokan" and "Syed Durwaish Khadari"]. Volume iii. D. Nos. from 103 to 180 (Hindustani). D. Nos. from 219 to 289 (Arabic). D. Nos. 688 to 821 (Persian). Madrās 1954.

Manchester, Mingana = Catalogue of the Arabic manuscripts in the John Rylands Library, Manchester, by A. Mingana . . . Manchester 1934.

Maqālāt al-ḥunafā': see PL. ii p. 182.

Miklukho-Maklai. See Leningrad Acad. above.

Mishkāt = Fihrist i kitāb-khānah i ihdā'ī i Āqā-yi Saiyid Muḥammad Mishkāt bah kitāb-khānah i Dānish-gāh i Tihrān (Publications of the University of Tihrān, 123, 168, 169, 181, 299 and ——), vol. i (the Qur'ān, etc.), by 'Alī-Naqī Munzawī, A.H.S.1330–1/1952, vol. ii (Adab), by the same, A.H.S. 1333/1955, vol. iii, pt. 1 (Philosophy etc.), by M. Taqī Dānish-pazhūh, A.H.S. 1332/1953, pt. 2 (Medicine, Mathematics, etc.), by the same, A.H.S. 1332/1953, pt. 3 (Akhbār, Uṣūl, Fiqh), by the same, A.H.S. 1335/1956 (another volume, or part, is to follow: see pt. 3 p. [2111]).

Nuzhat al-khawāṭir = N. al-kh. wa-bahjat al-masāmi' wa-'l-nawāẓir (in Arabic), a biographical dictionary of Indian celebrities in eight volumes (of which vol. i (1st–7th cent.,

[1] Cf. PL. i pp. 1135, 1354; ii p. xxxii. Although "Javaher Kelam" is so written, without iḍāfat, on the English title-page, I assume that an iḍāfat is implied, since J. i K. is apparently a persianisation of the title Jawāhir al-kalām (see PL. ii p. xxxii).

published A.H. 1366/1947), vol. ii (8th cent., A.H. 1350/1931–2),[1] and vol. iii (9th cent., A.H. 1371/1951) have so far been printed at the press of the Dā'irat al-Ma'ārif al-'Uthmānīyah, Ḥaidarābād, Deccan), by S. 'Abd al-Ḥaiy b. Fakhr al-Dīn al-Ḥasanī (a former Director of the Nadwat al-'Ulamā', Lucknow [cf. PL. i p. 1339[13]], d. 15 Jumādā II 1341/2 Feb. 1923: see N. al-kh. vol. i pp. ḍād—ḥḥ (a biography by his son, S. 'Abd al-'Alī al-Ḥasanī), vol. ii pp. 181–92 (the same biography slightly altered); M. Idrīs [cf. PL. i p. xviii, l. 9] p. 40; Nadhīr Aḥmad p. lxxxi; Brockelmann Sptbd. ii p. 863).

PL. = Persian literature, i.e. the present survey, as has already been explained.

Raiḥānat al-adab = R. al-a. fī tarājim al-ma'rūfīn bi-'l-kunyah au al-laqab [on the title-pages is added yā Kunā wa-alqāb], a biographical dictionary (in Persian) of Islamic celebrities ancient and modern, mainly scholars and men of letters, not far short of 5,000 in number, by M. 'Alī [b. M. Ṭāhir] Tabrīzī [Khiyābānī] [2] ma'rūf bah Mudarris, who was born at Tabrīz (R. al-a. vi p. 13, l. 6 from foot) in 1296/1879 and died there (vid. ibid.) on 1 Sha'bān 1373/5 April 1954 (R. al-a. vi p. 4[10]) [3] before completion of the printing of his work, which was seen through its final stages by his son, 'Alī Aṣghar Mudarris,[4] and which consists of six volumes published at [Tihrān] [5] and (vol. vi only) Tabrīz (Shafaq Pr.) from A.H. 1366/A.H.S. 1326/A.D. 1947 to [A.H.S. 1333, the preface to vol. vi being dated (on p. 34) 17 Isfand-māh 1333 (March 1955)] or more probably [A.H.S. 1334/1955] and containing (1) persons known by alqāb and ansāb (vols. i–iv), (2) persons

[1] This second volume, printed some years in advance of the others, is meant when the N. al-kh. is cited in the present survey without mention of the volume-number.

[2] Khiyābān is a maḥallah in Tabrīz (see Mujtahidī Rijāl i Ādharbāyjān . . . p. 73[10]).

[3] The author's autobiography is given in vol. iii, pp. 505–7 (under Mudarris, M. 'Alī) and there is a biography by his son, 'Alī Aṣghar Mudarris, in vol. vi, pp. 2–34. Both are accompanied by portraits.

[4] About whom the author says a few words in vol. iii, p. 506[30]–507[2].

[5] The imprints are Chāp-khānah i Sa'dī [Tihrān ?] (vol. i), Chāp-khānah i 'Ilmī (vol. ii, title-page), Chāp-khānah i Shirkat i Sihāmī i Ṭab' i Kitāb (vol. ii, cover, and vols. iii–v).

known by kunyahs ((a) Abū, vol. v pp. 5–209, (b) Ibn, vol. v p. 209 to vol. vi p. 207, (c) Umm, vol. vi pp. 208–58, (d) Bint, vol. vi pp. 258–63, (e) Banī, vol. vi pp. 264–316, (f) Āl, vol. vi pp. 316–71) [the work being thus complete except for the list of corrigenda, ghalaṭ-nāmah i judāgānah (see vol. i p. 439[12]), which the author hoped to append].

Tashkent Acad. = Akademiya Nauk Uzbekskoi SSR. Institut Vostokovedeniya. Sobranie vostochnykh rukopisei Akademii Nauk Uzbekskoi SSR . . . pod redaktsiei i pri uchastii . . . Professora A. A. Semenova. Vols. i——iv. Tashkent 1952——57.

Tashkent Univ. ii = A. A. Semenov. Opisanie tadzhikskikh, persidskikh, arabskikh i tyurkskikh rukopisei Fundamental'noi Biblioteki Sredneaziatskogo Gosudarstvennogo Universiteta im. V. I. Lenina. Vypusk 2 (English title: A. A. Semenov. A descriptive catalogue of the Persian, Tadjik, Arabic and Turkish manuscripts preserved in the Library of Middle Asiatic State University by name of V. I. Lenin). Tashkent 1956.

Vatican, Levi della Vida = Elenco dei manoscritti arabi islamici della Biblioteca Vaticana . . . [by] Giorgio Levi della Vida. Città del Vaticano 1935 (Studi e testi, 67).

Wilber = Recent Persian contributions to the historical geography of Iran. [By] Donald N. Wilber (see PL. ii p. 117).

It may perhaps be desirable to explain again that the signs °, *, †, and ‡ appended to the dates of printed editions have the following meanings :—

° (suggested by the domed circular Reading Room) = described in one of the British Museum catalogues.

* (suggested by the Star of India) = preserved in the India Office Library.

† = mentioned in one of the quarterly catalogues of Indian publications.

‡ = in my own possession or at least seen by me.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS

Vol. I

[These notes are not by any means an attempt to bring the first volume up to date (a task which I leave to my successors), but merely a selection [1] from the material which has accumulated. Their main purpose is to correct the mistakes that have come to my notice, to repair some oversights and to give such supplementary information about works or authors already included as seemed for one reason or another to call for immediate record. They are not, except in a few special cases, concerned with recently described manuscripts of works already dealt with and still less with works new to this survey.]

P. 109, l. 31. For Banbān see Islamic culture xxx/4 (Oct. 1956) p. 345, where the following explanation is given on the authority of a work entitled Juma'at i-Shahiya [sic ?]: Banbān wilāyatī-st mā-bain i Khurāsān u Multān u īn jamā'atī kih bah mulk i Gujrāt bah Banbāniyān mashhūr and az ān jā āmadah and u īshān az ḥaḍrat i 'Abd Allāh ibn i 'Abbās and. Perhaps this need not be taken too seriously, but at any rate it seems unlikely that the Banbānīs were connected with the manhal in al-Yamāmah mentioned by Yāqūt. Another Banbānī was Shāh-nawāz Khān Hāshimī Banbānī Dihlawī (see PL. i pp. 146, 1100[20], 1245).

P. 116, l. 15 (cf. PL. i p. 1240). [Nusakh i jahān-ārā.] Also Cambridge 2nd Suppt. 164 (A.H. 1055/1645).

P. 150, l. 23. 'Abd al-Wahhāb "Qaṭrah" died at Sāmān (north of Shahr i Kurd) in 1266/1849–50 (so Auzhan [cf. PL. ii p. 184 n.2] p. 1) or in 1270/1853–4 (so Nīk-zād [cf. PL. ii p. 184] p. 102). Riḍā-Qulī Khān does not describe him as still alive, though he uses one or two present tenses in speaking of him.

P. 161, l. 10 (cf. p. 1250[13]). Ibrāhīm b. Jalāl al-Dīn was not a Saljūqid (evidently a guess of Mehren's), but one of the Āl i Afrāsiyāb (see Tārīkh i Baihaqī, ed. Nafīsī, iii p. 1510).

P. 169 (16) [Majma' al-ḥasanāt ?], p. 170 (34) [Qiṣaṣ al-anbiyā'] and p. 1251 [Qiṣaṣ al-anbiyā']. These are evidently copies of the same work (the title Majma' al-ḥasanāt being no doubt spurious). Another MS.: Bodleian iii 2488 (n.d.).

P. 170 (34). See the addenda to p. 169 (16).

P. 205, n.2. The Mi'rāj-nāmah was published at Rasht in 1312/A.H. 1352 [A.D. 1934‡] (ed. Bahman Karīmī [cf. PL. ii p. 179]).

P. 221, l. 12. Bimūn [apparently not Bamūn] 'Alī seems to represent a popular pronunciation of Bi-mān 'Alī (a form in which the name is given in some of the editions, e.g. the recent Tihrān edition published without date [in 1956 ?] by the Islāmīyah Bookshop. For the meaning of the name see Balāghī Tārīkh i Nā'īn iv (Ansāb i khānadān-hā-yi mardum i Nā'īn) [cf. PL. ii p. 181] p. 56: Ammā Mīrzā Ja'far chūn pisarash na-mī zīstah nadhrī kardah u ū-rā Mīrzā Bi-mān 'Alī nāmīdah tā bāqī bi-mānad. For a person called al-maulā Bi-mān 'Alī al-Dāmaghānī, who died at Mashhad circ. A.H. 1330/1912, see Dharī'ah v p. 297[5].

P. 222, l. 26 (cf. p. 1263). For "Bīdil's" Mātam-kadah see Dharī'ah iii p. 186 no. 667 (under "Bīdil", evidently the popular name for the work). For part 2 of this work (lith. Tihrān 1277) see Mashhad v pp. 311–12, where Ramaḍān 1266 is given as the date of completion. Some anecdotes of "Bīdil" are related in the Qiṣaṣ al-'ulamā' in the notice of M. Bāqir Rashtī (p. 118 in the 1308–9 edition).

A complete Russian translation by A. A. Semenov exists in manuscript (see Tashkent Acad. i p. 86[29]).

P. 384, § 522. M. Ya'qūb calls himself M. Y. b. . . . Niẓām al-Millah wa-'l-Dīn Amīr i Kabīr M. Dāniyāl Bī Atālīq (see Kahl 5 (b), p. 3).

The text and Russian translation of the history of the Manghits has been prepared for the press by D. G. Voronovski (see Tashkent Acad. i p. 83[15]).

[1] Presumably the Tārīkh i salāṭīn i Manghitīyah (PL. i p. 383[30]).

P. 387 (12). For Mullā Ghaib Allāh Khwājah Wābkandī i mudarris cf. Tashkent Acad. iv no. 3398 (Taqrīrāt).

P. 388 (16). [Tārīkh i Manghitīyah.] According to Bukhārā Semenov p. 33 (corrections) this is the Gulshan al-mulūk (see PL. i p. 385 and the addenda to that page).

P. 388 (17). Tārīkh i shahādat i 'Abd Allāh Khān is a mistake for T. i sh. i 'Ubaid Allāh Khān, but this, according to Bukhārā Semenov p. 33 (corrections), is not the title of the work but the first heading in a history of Abū 'l-Faiḍ Khān. Since the author's name is given in the Bukhārā catalogue as Maulawī 'Abd al-Raḥmān, the work is presumably the—(Tārīkh i Abū 'l-Faiḍ Khān) [1] of 'Abd al-Raḥmān "Ṭālib", for another MS. of which see Tashkent Acad. i 194 (defective at both ends. 161 foll.). A complete annotated Russian translation by A. A. Semenov exists in manuscript (see Tashkent Acad. i p. 77[3]).

P. 388 (18). Nadhr M. Nasafī should be read (see Bukhārā Semenov p. 33 (corrections)).

P. 388 (19). [Tuḥfah i shāhī.] This is a history of the Manghits from the accession of M. Raḥīm to the fourteenth year of 'Abd al-Aḥad, i.e. 1317/1899. Another MS.: Tashkent Acad. i 235 (298 foll. A.H. 1348/1929). For another work by the same author see Tashkent Acad. i 236.

P. 391, l. 9. For 'Ashūr read 'Āshūr.

P. 391, l. 18. [Tārīkh i Shahrukhīyah.] Also Tashkent Acad. i 229.

P. 391, l. 25. 'Alīm should be corrected to 'Ālim (see Tashkent Acad. i 230, where an "apparently unique" MS. of the Ansāb al-salāṭīn (presumably the MS. formerly described as in private possession) is described).

P. 396. [Ḥāfiẓ Raḥmat Khān.] Of some interest are the following extracts from M. Najm al-Ghanī's Akhbār al-ṣanādīd (cf. PL. ii p. xxxi, l. 24):

Vol. i p. 62: In kē ānē kē ba'd san 1120 Hijrī mēñ Shāh-'Ālam Khān kē ṣulb sē ēk bēṭā paidā hūā jis kā nām Raḥmat Khān rak'hā.

[1] The correct title has not yet been ascertained.

Vol. i p. 511 : Jām i jahān-numā kē mu'allif[1] kā qaul hai kih Ḥāfiẓ Raḥmat Khān ḥifẓ i Qur'ān aur 'ulūm i dīn aur tawāḍu' aur karam aur taqwā aur diyānat kē sāt'h muttaṣif t'hē.

If Ḥāfiẓ Raḥmat Khān's name was Raḥmat Khān and if Ḥāfiẓ is a title borne by him for the usual reason that he knew the Qur'ān by heart, it would seem to follow that in the Encyclopædia of Islam he is wrongly placed as though Ḥāfiẓ were part of his name. The Encyclopædia of Islam is not an infallible guide in such matters. In the new edition Amīr Khusrau appears under Amīr, which is like indexing Dr. Johnson under Doctor. [In the old edition he appears under Khusrū [sic]. It is to be hoped that this article will be allowed to remain where it is (with correction of the unscholarly spelling).] Similarly the article on (M.) Taqī Khān Farāhānī is placed under Mīrzā,[2] where persons in search of it will be unlikely to find it except by accident.

Though the original form of this name was doubtless Kārzār-gāh, it was evidently corrupted into Gāzur-gāh (washing-place: cf. Burhān i qāṭi', Tihrān 1317, ii p. 1188a; etc.), perhaps without an intermediate Kāzargāh. Some recollection of its origin is possibly preserved in the spelling "Gāzār-gāh [read Kāzār-gāh ?] i Harī" in the Majālis al-nafā'is, ed. Ḥikmat, p. 220[9] (cf. Dih-khudā's Lughat-nāmah, gāf, p. 9c), though that spelling may be merely a mistake.

[1] Wāl, or wālā, is a Hindī suffix "added to subst. to derive nouns implying possession or relation generally" (Platts's Urdu dict., where dillī-wālā, "belonging to, or a native of, Delhi", is one of the examples). P. 1034, l. 24. [Ghulām-'Alī Dihlawī.] The date 1158/1745 is an inference from the statement (Khazīnat al-aṣfiyā', Cawnpore 1914, i p. 694[1]) that when he became a disciple of "Maẓhar" in 1180 he was twenty-two years old. Raḥmān 'Alī, however, gives 1156 as the date of his birth (cf. Miftāḥ al-tawārīkh p. 384).

P. 1034, l. 24. "Baṭālah in the Gūrdāspūr District of the Panjāb" is my (perhaps incorrect) interpretation of qaṣabah i Ṭapālah i Panjāb (پنجاب ٹپالہ قصبہ, Khazīnat al-aṣfiyā' i p. 693[16] (cf. p. 693[17])). A place nearer to Delhi (but not then in existence?) would be Paṭyālah. Raḥmān 'Alī does not mention the place of Ghulām-'Alī's birth.

"C'est à la vie de l'éminent président du conseil persan et commandant en chef de l'armée persane à l'époque de Nāṣiru'd-Dīn Šāh, qu'est consacré l'ouvrage de Ḥosein Mekkī (qui le signa du pseudonyme d'Ādamīyat Ferīdūn) intitulé Amīr-i Kebīr wa Īrān yā waraḳī az tārīḫ-i siyāsī-yi Īrān . . . C'est l'œuvre d'un jeune historien, présentée comme thèse de doctorat à l'Université de Ṭehrān. L'auteur y travailla pendant sept ans et publia son livre à l'occasion du 95e anniversaire de la mort de Mīrzā Taḳī Ḫān, nommé Amīr-i Kebīr ou Amīr-i Niẓām . . . La première édition du tome I de l'ouvrage de Ḥosein Mekkī (dont nous avons entre nos mains la seconde édition) fut épuisée en six semaines . . ." (Franciszek Machalski Quelques remarques . . . [see PL. i p. 1178 n.1] p. 101).

These sentences suggest special knowledge, but nevertheless it seems at least possible that there is here a confusion of two different persons who have written works on the same subject. Dr. Farīdūn Ādamīyat, at one time 2nd Secretary at the Persian Embassy in London (see Whitaker's Almanack 1948 p. 927b, 1949 p. 963b), is the author of Amīr i Kabīr u Īrān, of which a second edition (chāp i duwwum), revised and enlarged, was published in 1334/1955–6‡ (510 pp. Mu'assasah i Maṭbū'ātī i Amīr i Kabīr. Chāp i Pīrūz). On p. [iii] of that edition are mentioned two other works by the same author, namely, Bahrein Islands: a legal and diplomatic study of the British-Iranian controversy and The diplomatic relations of Persia with Britain, Turkey, and Russia, 1815–1830. On p. 503 the author mentions that his work, originally published in three volumes (cf. PL. i p. 1350[3]), was being reprinted after ten years. On the other hand the work of Ḥusain Makkī (entitled Zindagī i Mīrzā Taqī Khān Amīr i Kabīr, or the like, and apparently unmentioned by F. Ādamīyat) seems to have been published originally in 1945 or thereabouts and the second edition in 1950 or 1951 (cf. PL. i p. 1350[4]). This problem must be solved by someone having access to all these editions: meanwhile the statements made in PL. i p. 1349[20]–p. 1350[14] should not be accepted without verification.

P. 1353, l. 6. [Rijāl i Iṣfahān yā Tadhkirat al-qubūr.] Cf. Dharī'ah x p. 96 ult. no. 193. This second edition of the Tadhkirat al-qubūr is so greatly enlarged that it may be regarded almost as an independent work best referred to as Rijāl i Iṣfahān (rather than T. al-q., 2nd ed.) and Muṣliḥ al-Dīn Mahdawī as the joint author, not merely the editor.

(c) Tarjamah i Taḥrīr i Ūqlīdis.[3]

[1] Not Nāṣir.

[2] This title, not mentioned by Ethé, is that by which this commentary is designated by the author's son, M. 'Alī, in his preface to his father's Taqrīb al-Taḥrīr, a translation and explanation of Ṭūsī's Taḥrīr al-Majisṭī (see Bānkīpūr xi 1058, Ivanow 2nd Suppt. 1084).

[3] The identity of the translator is not disclosed in the Calcutta edition of 1824*, which has no preface and begins immediately with the ḥudūd (Nuqṭah ast kih ū-rā juzw na-bāshad ya'nī az chīzhā'ī-kih qābil i ishārat i ḥissī bāshand, etc.).

suggests at least that Baihaqī (whose arrangement is very roughly chronological with exceptions) did not regard him as an author of the recent past. The date 632/1234 given in the Āyā Ṣōfyah catalogue (cf. Brockelmann Sptbd. i p. 859) as that of the composition of the Miftāḥ al-mu'āmalāt is in reality the date of transcription (see Krause p. 492).

[1] R. 'A. "Naẓmī" b. Naḍhr-'Alī Anṣārī Jaunpūrī, a professor in the College of Fort William at Calcutta, died about 1810 and was buried at Murshidābād. He was the author of a once popular Persian grammar entitled Qawā'id i Fārsī, of two tracts relating to the permutations of letters in Arabic ((1) Risālah i ṣarf fī i hamzah u i'lāl u idghām (2) Ta'līlāt) and, according to the Tajallī i nūr, of a commentary on the Maqāmāt of al-Ḥarīrī. This article deals with Aḥmad, his three sons, 'Aṭā' Allāh " Rushdī " (cf. p. 15[6] infra), Luṭf Allāh " Muhandis " (cf. p. 16 inf. a) and Nūr Allāh " Mi'mār ", his grandsons Imām al-Dīn " Riyāḍī " b. MS. of Luṭf Allāh's Dīwān i Muhandis in private possession at Bangalore and quotes from it some interesting verses, which include the following in reference to his father (p. 49) :

[3] For the " Taj Mahall " see the article Tādj Maḥall by T. W. Haig in the Ency. Isl.

[4] " Rashīdī " according to Rieu and other cataloguers, but according to M. Abdullah Chaghtai (see p. 205 n.2 in the article referred to on p. 15[34–5] supra) " Rushdī " is the reading of the two Bīj ganit MSS. inspected by him (BM. Add. 16,869 [= Rieu ii p. 450b : he does not seem to have examined the other BM. MS.] and one dated 1145 in the Sa'īdīyah Library at Ḥaidarābād, Deccan). Support for this reading is perhaps provided by a verse quoted from the Dīwān i Muhandis on p. 49 ult. in S. Sulaimān Nadwī's article (see p. 15 n. 2 supra). This verse runs :

Pas sih pisar mānd zi mard i suturg — Z'ān sih 'Aṭā'u 'llah i Rushdī buzurg

Although " Rashīdī " is there printed, that form would scan only if the iḍāfat were dispensed with and the final h of 'llah ignored. The MS. has Rshd [sic].

His Urdu work Sittah i Shamsīyah was published in six volumes in 1256/1840 (see Āṣafīyah i p. 826, under Riyāḍī i Urdū). His eldest son, 'Umdat al-Mulk M. Rafī' al-Dīn Khān, was the author of some astronomical works in Persian and of at least two scientific works in Urdu (see Āṣafīyah i p. 824 no. 60, p. 826 no. 61). [Gulzār i Āṣafīyah pp. 286–90 ; Beale Oriental biographical dictionary under Shams-ul-'Umra ; Madhīyah i Shamsīyah [in Urdu, 76 pp.], by M. Ghulām-Imām

[1] This is made probable by the date, 1270/1853–4, at which the Zubdat al-ḥisāb was published. There were, however, other persons who bore the title A'ẓam al-Umarā', among them the Ḥaidarābādī noble Arasṭū-Jāh mentioned on p. 18[1] supra.

[2] This is a quasi-title used by the author of the Dharī'ah for arithmetical works of which he did not know the real title.

50. Najm al-Daulah [2] Mīrzā ʿAbd al-Ghaffār Khān b. ʿAlī Muḥammad Iṣfahānī, Chief Astrologer (Munajjim-bāshī) to Nāṣir al-Dīn Shāh and " Professor of all the exact sciences " in the Dār al-Funūn College, was born in 1255/1839–40 (so Dharīʿah vii p. 8^{15}) and died on 14 Jumādā I 1326/14 June 1908 (so Dharīʿah iii p. 58^{13}, vii p. 8^{15}).[3] Several of his mathematical and scientific works are mentioned in Browne's Press and poetry pp. 157–8.

[1] Some of the mathematical and scientific works produced by the teachers at these two colleges are recorded in Browne's Press and poetry pp. 157–63 and in al-Dharīʿah ilā taṣānīf al-Shīʿah under such titles as al-Jabr wa-'l-muqābalah and al-Ḥisāb. Only a few of these works and of analogous later works have been included in the present survey as specimens of these branches of literature or as illustrations of the activity of certain authors and translators.

B. WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

61. [Mīr] M. Mu'min b. 'Alī Ḥusainī [Astarābādī] [1] is mentioned in the Haft iqlīm (no. 1172) as being at the time of writing [circ. 1002/1593–4] in the service of Muḥammad-Qulī Quṭb-

[1] Astarābādī: so Firishtah, Iskandar Bēg, etc., doubtless correctly, though he himself does not append this word to his name. He is evidently a different person from Mīr M. Mu'min [father's name not ascertained] Ḥusainī Astarābādī Mak[kī], who completed in 1069/1659 a risālah fī 'l-raj'ah (I.Ḥ. no. 1393), apparently in Arabic, gave an ijāzah (I.Ḥ. no. 77) to M. Bāqir b. M. Taqī al-Majlisī (b. 1037/1627–8 or 1038/1628–9: see PL. i pp. 196, 1132[2], 1256–7) and is described in the Amal al-āmil (p. 67[26]) as a [deceased] resident of Mecca (al-Amīr M. Mu'min al-Astarābādī sākin Makkah 'ālim fāḍil faqīh muḥaddith shāhid shahīd lahu risālah fī 'l-raj'ah, min al-mu'āṣirīn). Cf. Qiṣaṣ al-'ulamā' p. 213; Nujūm al-samā' pp. 82–3, where the two persons are treated as one.

Shāh [of Golconda, A.H. 989–1020/1581–1611], having gone to the Deccan and risen to high favour in the reign of his predecessor, Ibrāhīm Quṭb-Shāh [957–89/1550–81]. According to the Tārīkh i 'ālam-ārāy i 'Abbāsī (in which he is described as still alive in 1025/1616 at the time of writing) he was a nephew (khwāhar-zādah) of Mīr Fakhr al-Dīn Sammākī (for whom see PL. i pp. 17, 1198), was appointed instructor to the shāh-zādah Sulṭān Ḥaidar Mīrzā (born in, or about, 962/1555, 'Ālam-ārā p. 101[13]) by Shāh Ṭahmāsp, left Persia after the prince's death [16 Ṣafar 984/15 May 1576] and the accession of his brother Ismā'īl II [later in the same year], entered the service of Muḥammad-Qulī Quṭb-Shāh and became Prime Minister.[1] Firishtah, who was his contemporary in the Deccan at the court of a neighbouring dynasty, gives a somewhat similar account of him[2] and quotes a number of his verses in discussing the reign of Muḥammad-Qulī Quṭb-Shāh. According to Taqī Kāshī (Sprenger p. 42) he was at Kāshān in 987, but this date needs confirmation.

[1] The text as quoted in the Nujūm al-samā' differs to some extent from that of the Ṭihrān lithograph (in which, for example, there is no reference to the treatise on prosody) and runs as follows: Mīr M. Mūmin i Astarābādī az sādāt i 'iẓām i Astarābād u khwāhar-zādah i Amīr Fakhr al-Dīn i Sammākī ast bisyār fāḍil u mutadaiyin u nīkū-akhlāq u ṣāhib-ṭabī'at būd gāhī ba-nazm i ash'ār mail mī-numūd u qaṣā'id u rubā'īyāt i marghūb dārad u dar 'ilm i 'arūḍ risāla'ī taṣnīf kardah kih tā ghāyat dar ān 'ilm mithl i ān risālah ta'līf na-numūdah and u dar ṣalāḥ u taqwā darajah i 'ālī dāsht u ba-ta'līm i shāh-zādah i 'ālamiyān Ḥaidar Mīrzā qiyām mī-numūd u ba'd az qaḍīyah i hā'ilah i Mīrzā u istīlā-yi Ismā'īl Mīrzā tāb i muqāwamat [Ṭihrān text: tawaqquf] i Īrān na-y-āwardah ba-jānib i Hind u Dakan raft u ba-jihat i wufūr i tashaiyu' mulāzamat i Sulṭān Muḥammad-Qulī Quṭb-Shāh ikhtiyār numūd u dar ān-jā ba-ghāyat mu'tabar shud u martabah i wakālat u pīshwā'ī yāft aknūn kih tārīkh i Hijrī ba-khams wa-'ishrīn wa-alf rasīdah dar qaid i ḥayāt ast u mustaḥiqqīn i har diyār kih [sic] ba-wasīlah i ū az ān silsilah [i.e. silsilah i 'alīyah i Quṭb-Shāhīyah, previously mentioned in the Ṭihrān text] tamattu' mī-yāband.

65. Sh. Ḥabīb Allāh Sharīf Kāshānī [b. 'Alī-madad Sāwajī] was born at Kāshān in 1262/1846 and died there on 23 Jumādā II 1340/21 Feb. 1922. His Persian work Wasīlat al-ma'ād wa-dharī'at al-'ibād, on the merits of the Prophet's descendants, was completed in 1287/1870 and lithographed at Tihrān in 1326/1908 (see Mashhad v p. 348). Another Persian work, Maṣābīḥ al-ṣā'imīn, was printed in Persia in 1363/1946 (see Mashhad v p. 324). He wrote Arabic commentaries on the Sūrat al-Fatḥ (Tihrān 1322/1904: see Mashhad iv p. 472), the Sūrat al-Kauthar (title: Durrat al-durar. Edition: Tihrān 1326/1908: see Mashhad iv p. 487) and the Sūrat al-Ikhlāṣ (appended to the preceding: see Mashhad iv p. 471). [Mashhad iv p. 472; Brockelmann Sptbd. ii p. 833.]

C. ASTRONOMY AND ASTROLOGY

69. Teukros wrote in the first century of the Christian era an astrological work, Ta paranatellonta tois dekanois, which is now lost, but of which passages are quoted in other Greek works (Browne Volume p. 360[14]) and which was known in a translation from a Pahlawī version to Abū Ma'shar, who died in 272 886 (Browne Volume p. 360[25]). In Pahlawī the normal transcription of Teukros would be Tēwkrōs, but the sign representing ēw could also be read īv, vī, īn, nī, nē, etc., while that representing rō could be read lō, rū, lū, etc. (Browne Vol. pp. 362–3). Consequently in Arabic works the name appears in the corrupt forms Tīnkalūs, Tankālūs and Ṭīnqarūs. Finally in the Arabic forgery al-Filāḥat al-Nabaṭīyah (A.H. 318/930 : see Brockelmann i 242, Sptbd. i 430) it is given the Aramaic form Tankalūshā,[1] which after the fourth/tenth century displaces the earlier corruptions. These facts and other relevant matters are set forth in an article, Tracce di opere greche giunte agli Arabi per trafila pehlevica, contributed by C. A. Nallino to A volume of Oriental studies presented to E. G. Browne, Cambridge 1922, pp. 345–63.

Risālah dar aḥkām i darajāt) (beg. al-Ḥ. l. . . . ch. g.

70. Claudius Ptolemaeus, in English Ptolemy, in the Islāmic languages Baṭlamyūs,[2] Baṭlaimūs [3] or Baṭlīmūs [4] (to which the Arabs append al-Qalūdhī = Claudius), was an Egyptian and observed at Alexandria in the reigns of Hadrian (A.D. 117–38) and Antoninus Pius (A.D. 138–61) (see *Ency. Abī 'l-Khair Rāzī, a secretary (dabīr) and accountant (mustaufī), not a professional astrologer, is the author of an encyclopaedia, the Nuzhat-nāmah i 'Alā'ī (see Bodleian 1480, Gotha 10, Majlis 784, JRAS. 1929 p. 863 n.2, etc.), which must have been written after 475/1082–3 (or 477/1084–5 according to the text quoted in the Majlis catalogue p. 492[9]), since that is the date which he assigns (with a query) to an event witnessed by him at Kāshān (N.-n., maqālah x, bāb 1, last faṣl). His Rauḍat al-munajjimīn was submitted for approval to his master Abū 'l-Ḥasan 'Alī b. Ibrāhīm [so Rieu] al-Nasawī [apparently a mistake for Abū 'l-Ḥasan 'Alī b. Aḥmad al-Nasawī, an astronomer of Raiy, for whom see PL. ii p. 42, n. 1 ; Tatimmat Ṣiwān al-ḥikmah p. 109 ; Brockelmann Sptbd. i p. 390].

Rauḍat al-munajjimīn (beg. Sp. Khudāy rā kih Āfrīdgār i jahān-ast u Rūzī-dihandah), a large work on astrology for beginners in fifteen maqālahs composed probably, in part at least, in the Yazdagirdī years 442–3 [A.H. 465–6/1072–4], " which are given as examples of calculations " (Rieu) : Ḥ. Kh. iii p. 512, Rieu ii 870a (A.H. 814/1411), 852b (extract only, foll. 77–85. A.H. 894/1489 or thereabouts), Rehatsek p. 22 no. 39 (acephalous. A.H. 821/1418), Nūr i 'Uthmānīyah 2788, Leyden iii p. 160 no.1196 (18) (maqālah vi (the astrolabe) only), probably also Berlin MS. Orient. 4° 848 (see BSOS. x/1 (1939) p. 124).

82. 'Ain al-Zamān Abū 'Alī al-Ḥasan b. 'Alī b. M. al-Qaṭṭān al-Marwazī, physician and man of letters, was born at Marw in 465/1072–3 and was put to death there by the Ghuzz invaders in Rajab 548/October 1153. He was the author of a treatise on prosody, of medical works and of al-Dauḥah fī 'l-ansāb. He corresponded with Rashīd al-Dīn Waṭwāṭ (see Majmū'at rasā'il R. al-D. al-W., Cairo A.H. 1315/1897–8, ii p. 15 sqq.).

Gaihān-shinākht (beg. Sp. Āfrīdgār rā kī har-chi āfrīd durust u khūb āfrīd), composed at Marw in 498–500/1104–7 and divided into three faṣls ((1) dar bayān i 'ālam i 'ulwī, (2) dar bayān i 'ālam i suflī, (3) dar gudhashtan i rūzgār): Majlis i 202 (67 foll. Transcribed in 1347/1928–9 from a MS. of 586/1190. Cf. Nāmah i Farhangistān i/4 p. 32).

83. Of unknown authorship is:

(Ikhtiyārāt i Sanjarī) [1] (beg. Ḥ. u th. Khudāy rā kih juz Ū rā har-chih nām i hastī ast), composed by order of Sulṭān Sanjar b. Malik-Shāh (A.H. 511–52/1117–57) and dedicated to him: Majlis i 147 (2) (A.H. 1040/1630–1).

84. Ẓahīr al-Ḥaqq [wa-'l-Dīn] Abū 'l-Maḥāmid M. b. Mas'ūd b. M. b. al-Zakī al-Ghaznawī was the author of (1) al-Badī' [fī 'l-naḥw] (cf. Mughnī 'l-labīb, Cairo 1328–9, ii p. 117[20], Bughyat al-wu'āt p. 105, Ḥ. Kh. ii p. 39), (2) Nāfi' al-Thamarah, a commentary on Ptolemy's Thamarah (for which see PL. ii p. 36), mentioned by the author himself in his Kifāyat al-ta'līm (fol. 46a in the Panjāb Univ. MS.: see Tatimmat Ṣiwān al-ḥikmah, notes, p. 208[6]), and (3) Iḥyā' al-ḥaqq, mentioned in the Tatimmat Ṣ. al-ḥ. No MSS. of these works seem to be recorded.

[Tatimmat Ṣiwān al-ḥikmah, ed. M. Shafī', pp. 149, 207–10; Durrat al-akhbār p. 96; Itmām al-Tatimmah (MS. Köprülü 902, fol. 198b, quoted in M. Shafī''s notes to the Tatimmat Ṣiwān al-ḥikmah p. 208 penult.)].

It has been assumed (e.g. by Brockelmann, M. Shafī', and Krause) that M. b. Mas'ūd al-Ghaznawī was the same person as M. b. Mas'ūd al-Mas'ūdī, the author of the Jahān-dānish, a

[1] This laqab, not mentioned by the author in his preface, is added to his name by the copyist of Rieu Suppt. 154 in a " prefixed title " and it evidently occurs also, doubtless in a similar position, in the Tabrīz MS. mentioned in n. 2 on p. 51. If correct, it would be sufficient to show that M. b. Mas'ūd al-Mas'ūdī was not the same person as Ẓahīr al-Dīn M. b. Mas'ūd al-Ghaznawī (cf. PL. ii p. 46).

[2] So at the end of Rieu Suppt. 154, but at the end of Bodleian 1497 the date of completion is given as Ṣafar 672 [Aug.–Sept. 1273], possibly the date of a second edition, but certainly not of the first, since several of the MSS. are earlier than this. According to the owner of a MS. at Tabrīz (cited in the Dharī'ah) the date of composition appears in that MS. as 549 and the author's name [presumably not in the text] as Sharaf al-Dīn M. b. Mas'ūd. If this last date were correct, the author might conceivably be the same person as Ẓahīr al-Dīn M. b. Mas'ūd al-Ghaznawī, but the latter's Persian work Kifāyat al-ṣinā'at fī ṣinā'at al-tanjīm is of course a different work from the Arabic al-Kifāyah fī 'ilm hai'at al-'ālam, though the two have been confused by some writers.

4. 'Alā' al-Dīn 'Alī-Shāh b. M. b. Qāsim al-Khuwārazmī al-Bukhārī must have been born in, or about, 623/1226, since his age was thirty-six in 659/1261 (Ashjār u athmār, Bombay Univ. MS., fol. 154), when he returned to Bukhārā from a journey to Turkistan (Samarqand, where his father had gone as a merchant, Shāsh, etc.). After the devastation of Bukhārā by Abāqā's army in 671/1273 (a calamity about which he wrote a qaṣīdah) he went on a visit to the tomb of 'Alī b. Abī Ṭālib and fifteen years later he was still in al-'Irāq, suffering much distress and unable to carry out his desire to make a pilgrimage to the Ḥijāz. Apparently it was not until 690/1291 that he was able to leave Baghdād. He refers in the Ashjār u athmār to his Zīj al-'Umdah and his dīwān i ash'ār (see Bombay Univ. Cat. p. 44), and says that his proficiency in poetry and music enabled him to consort with kings and other great men. It is not clear whether this work has any connexion with the Zīj i jāmi' mentioned in the next article.

109. Apparently unknown is the authorship [2] of:

Zīj i jāmi' [so in the colophon] (beg. . . . ma'lūm chih mauḍū' i ān ashraf i maḥsūsāt ast), begun at Cairo in 852/1448, continued in 865/1460–1 after a long interruption and divided into a muqaddamah, two bābs and a khātimah (of which, however, the second bāb and the khātimah were lost in 866/1461–2 at the sack of Badr,[3] where the author was living), being an abridgment (zīj i intikhābī) of the "renowned" tables of Maḥmūd Shāh Khaljī [4]: Bodleian 1522 (acephalous. Only the

[1] The younger son of Mīrzā Bāysunqur b. Shāh-Rukh and great-grandson of Tīmūr. He died in 861/1457 at Mashhad. See Ḥabīb al-siyar iii, 3, p. 171. He is of course a different person from Ẓahīr al-Dīn M. Bābur, the conqueror of India, who was the son of 'Umar Shaikh b. Abī Sa'īd b. M. b. Mīrān-Shāh b. Tīmūr.

[2] The similarity of title and date suggest the possibility that this Zīj i jāmi' may be the same work as the Zīj i jāmi' i Sa'īdī or a later edition of it dished up for a different dedicatee.

[3] Evidently a corruption or variant spelling of Bīdar, a town which was besieged in 866 by Maḥmūd-Shāh Khaljī of Mālwah (see Firishtah, ed. Briggs, ii p. 499[2], [Lucknow] ed. of 1281/1864–5, ii p. 252, l. 4 from foot).

[4] So according to Ethé, whose description of Bodleian 1522 does not tally with Rieu's statement (ii 254*b* ult.) that Greaves's Astronomica quaedam is the introduction of a commentary "by Maḥmūd Shāh Khuljī" on the Zīj i Il-Khānī of Naṣīr al-Dīn Ṭūsī. That Bodleian 1522 is the basis of Greaves's Astronomica quaedam seems at least highly probable, though Ethé (with Rieu's words before him, but doubtless without inspection of the Astronomica quaedam) supposed it to be a different work. Some further investigation of this matter is necessary. It is natural to suppose that Maḥmūd-Shāh Khaljī is the contemporary ruler of Mālwah (A.H. 839–73/1435–69), who is unlikely to have been the "author" of a zīj, but may have had one dedicated to him.

(3) Risālah i rub' i jāmi' : Nūr i 'Uthmānīyah 2926.

119. At Samarqand in Jumādā i 923/May–June 1517 was completed :—

Risālah dar 'ilm i nujūm((beg. al-Ḥ. l. 'l. ḥukmuhu 'l-mubramu aṣwabu 'l-aḥkām), a treatise on astrology in five bābs with a detailed horoscope of Sh. Ḍiyā' al-Dīn Muḥammad: Ivanow Curzon 574 (lacunae. 77 foll. Samarqand, A.H. 923/1517, transcribed apparently from the author's draft).

120. Muḥyī 'l-Dīn b. Badr al-Dīn al-Anārī [2] transcribed in 915/1509 the earlier Mishkāt MS. of the Laṭā'if al-kalām (cat. iii/2 pp. 936–7 no. 1141).

Jāmi' al-qirānāt, or, as Ḥanīf-zādah calls it, Aḥkām al-qirānāt, (beg. Khūbtarīn kalāmī kih chūn āftāb i 'ālamtāb), composed in the reign of Abū 'l-Muẓaffar Shāh Ismā'īl Ṣafawī [A.H. 907–30/1502–24] : Ḥanīf-zādah Āthār i nau (Ḥ. Kh. vi p. 529), Mishkāt iii/2 pp. 872–3 no. 1079 (35 foll., defective. A.H. 1002/1594), Leyden iii p. 152 no. 1188 (not later than A.D. 1669).

121. Niẓām al-Dīn 'Abd al-'Alī b. M. b. Ḥusain Birjandī died in 934/1527–8 according to the Mashhad catalogue (iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., nos. 7 and 79), where the authority for this date is not mentioned. For his Arabic works see Brockelmann Sptbd. ii p. 591 (cf. Haft iqlīm no. 830 ; PL. i p. 53 n.1).

[1] The Mashhad MSS. are described as apparently ('alā 'l-ẓāhir) by Maḥmūd b. M. b. Q.-z. al-R.

[2] Presumably from Anār, between Yazd and Kirmān (cf. Browne A year amongst the Persians p. 546 ; le Strange p. 286).

1) (Ab'ād u ajrām),[1] or (Risālah dar ab'ād u ajrām u a'yān i bilād), etc.[2] (beg. al-Ḥ. l. 'l. zaiyana 'l-samā'a bi-kawākibi-hā wa-ḥaffa 'l-arḍa bi-zīnati 'l-kawākib), completed in 930/1524,[3] presumably at Harāt, dedicated to Khwājah Ḥabīb Allāh Shīrwajī: cf. PL. i p. 104[16]] and divided into a muqaddamah (elementary geometrical conceptions), two maqālahs ((1) on the measurements of the earth's surface and the definition and description of the Seven Climes, (2) the measurements of the heavens, the stars, etc.), and a khātimah (rules for calculating the times of prayer and the qiblah): Dharī'ah i p. 71 no. 352, Mashhad fsl. 17, MSS., nos. 7 (A.H. 961/1554), 79 (defective), Ethé 717 (A.H. 1024/1615), I.O. 3776 (?), Browne Coll. K. 6 (3) = Houtum-Schindler 43 (3) (A.H. 1085/1674), Rieu ii 827b (17th cent.), i 417a (A.H. 1251/1835–6), 418a (A.H. 1256/1840), Majlis 621 (11), apparently also Bodleian 404 ('Ajā'ib al-buldān, similarly divided and dedicated to Khwājah Ḥabīb Allāh, but beginning differently al-Ḥ. l. 'l. kāla 'l-mā'a bi-yadihi).

(2) (Bīst bāb dar taqwīm), or (Mukhtaṣar (or Risālah) dar ma'rifat i taqwīm) (beg. (in Bodl. 1539: cf. Ethé 2246) Bi-smi 'llāhi . . . wa-bi-taufīqika yā Karīm a. b. īn mukhtaṣarī-st dar ma'rifat i taqwīm i tāmm mushtamil bar bīst bāb, a short tract on chronology and the computation of almanacs, in twenty bābs (for the subjects of which see Rehatsek p. 7 no. 9), completed in Jumādā i 883/August 1478: Dharī'ah iii p. 188 no. 671, Bodleian 1539 (A.H. 954/1547), 1540 (n.d.), Mashhad fsl. 17, MSS., nos. 18 (A.H. 971/1563–4), 20, Aumer 346 (5) (A.H. 1021 1612), Ivanow 1490 (A.H. 1068/1657–8), Ethé 2246 (A.H. 1106 1694), Browne Suppt. 1490 (1).

Editions: according to the Mashhad catalogue it has been printed repeatedly (mukarrar) with the commentary of Mullā Muẓaffar.

Commentary: Sharḥ i Bīst bāb [dar taqwīm] (beg.

[1] Cf. Habīb al-siyar iii 4, p. 117[20].

[2] In the absence of a formal title nearly every MS. seems to have a different quasi-title.

[3] So according to the Mashhad catalogue, where this date is said to be indicated at the end of the work by the chronogram Tamma fī Rajab bi-'auni 'llāh. This chronogram, however, should indicate 929. From the author's use of the Yazdagirdī year 872 (A.H. 908–9) as the starting-point for a period of seventy years Rieu inferred that this was the date of composition.

H. u th. i bī-raib u riyā Qadīrī rā sazā-st), dedicated to Shāh 'Abbās (A.H. 996–1038/1588–1629)[1] by Muẓaffar b. M. Qāsim Junābadī[2]: Rehatsek p. 7 no. 9 (A.H. 985/1577–8 [sic ?]), Cairo p. 512 (A.H. 167 [= 1067/1657 ?]), Ethé 2247 (A.H. 1106/1694), Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 116 (A.H. 1232/1817), 117 (A.H. 1235/1820), Browne Suppt. 1487 (A.H. 1241/1826), 'Aligaṛh Subḥ. MSS. p. 23 no. 21 (defective), Bodleian iii 2734 (fragment only), Leningrad Pub. Lib. (Chanykov 120), Nūr i 'Uthmāniyah 2791.

Editions: Ṭihrān 1271/1854–5 (Sharḥ i Bīst bāb. See Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, ptd. bks., no. 11); and others (cf. PL. ii p. 81[30]).

Summary of the contents: Rehatsek, loc. cit.

(3) Risālah i hai'at (beg. Sh. u sp. u ḥ. i bī-q. mar Ṣāni'ī rā kih naqqāsh i qudrat), a short astronomical and geographical work (by Bīrjandī according to Bodleian 1541, but without author's name in Bkp. xi 1048), divided into a muqaddamah, and four maqālahs ((1) dar ma'rifat i mabda' i sālhā i tawārīkh, (2) dar ma'rifat i hai'at i aflāk u kawākib ba-ṭarīq i ijmāl, (3) [wrongly called (2) in both MSS.], dar ma'rifat i zamīn u aqsām i ū ba-aqālīm, (4) [wrongly called (3)] dar ta'dād i bilād u wilāyāt u jibāl u biḥār u anhār): Bānkīpūr xi 1048 (53 foll. A.H. 1052/1642), Bodleian 1541 (n.d.), probably also Lahore Univ. (A.H. 1205/1790–1. OCM. x/3 (May 1934) p. 105). [P.S. See p. 137 infra.]

122. Mīr Ghiyāth al-Dīn Manṣūr b. Ṣadr al-Dīn M. Ḥusainī Dashtakī Shīrāzī, who founded the Madrasah i Manṣūrīyah at Shīrāz and was for a time Ṣadr in the reign of Shāh Ṭahmāsp (A.H. 930–84/1524–76), died at Shīrāz in 948/1541–2 or 949/1542–3. A list of thirty-two works by him is given in the Majālis al-mu'minīn (pp. 351–2, towards the end of Majlis vii) and reproduced in the Bānkīpūr catalogue ix pp. 201–2. [Ḥasan

[1] The date of completion is given in the Mashhad catalogue as 1005/1596–7, indicated by a chronogram (Ustukmila 'l-kitāb) at the end of the work. This date is later than the alleged date (A.H. 985) of the MS. described by Rehatsek, which is itself earlier than the reign of Shāh 'Abbās. Perhaps there were two editions.

[2] Author of the Tanbīhāt al-munajjimīn, undertaken (in 1031/1622 ?) for Shāh 'Abbās (see PL. ii p. 88).

Rūmlū p. 303, Seddon's trans. p. 137 ; Haft iqlīm p. 259 (no. 204) ; Rauḍāt al-jannāt iv pp. 129–31 ; Rieu ii 826 ; Brockelmann Sptbd. ii p. 593 ; Hadīyat al-aḥbāb p. 226].

(1) (Risālah dar hai'at), in four bābs : Leyden iii p. 152 no. 1187 (13 foll.).

(2) (Risālah dar ṣan'at i tasṭīḥ i usṭurlāb) (beg. Ai Ḥakīmī kih ashi''ah i āftāb i wujūb i wujūd i Tū), in ten faṣls and a khātimah : Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 90 (57 foll.).

123. Abū 'l-Khair M. al-Taqī b. M. al-Fārisī, as he calls himself (apparently) in the Ḥall al-taqwīm (cf. Dharī'ah vii p. 67 no. 357), the Ḥall i usṭurlāb (Dharī'ah i p. 35 no. 172 : cf. Bkp. xvii 1651) and the Ṭāli'-nāmah (cf. R.-B. 270 (2)), seems in some of his works to have used shorter forms of his name, e.g. A. 'l-Kh. M. b. M. al-F. (Bkp. xi 984), A. 'l-Kh. M. F. (Aumer 346 (7)), and M. b. M. al-F. (Dharī'ah viii p. 19 no. 8), while some authorities call him Taqī al-Dīn A. 'l-Kh. M. b. M. al-Fārisī (cf. Dharī'ah ii p. 9 no. 23, iii p. 189 no. 674, vii p. 67 no. 357 Ḥ. Kh. i p. 486), but it is not at present clear from the catalogues, etc., that he himself gives his name in this last form. He was a pupil of Ghiyāth al-Dīn Manṣūr Shīrazī (for whom see PL ii p. 82). Among his works were Anīs al-aṭibbā' (Bānkīpūr xi 984, New Coll. Edinburgh p. 7, Ḥ. Kh. i p. 486), Asāmī 'l-'ulūm wa-'ṣṭilāḥātuhā (in Arabic : cf. Dharī'ah ii p. 9), its abridgment Ṭalī'at al-'ulūm (cf. Ḥ. Kh. iv p. 167, Brockelmann Sptbd. ii p. 594, Dharī'ah ii p. 10^7), and al-Dā'irat al-Hindīyah (so Dharī'ah viii p. 19 no. 8) or Ma'rifat al-qiblah (so Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 156, also in Arabic). It is scarcely open to doubt that, as suggested in the Dharī'ah, ii p. 10^2, this author is the Abū 'l-Khair whom Ḥ. Kh. quotes from time to time in his accounts of the various branches of literature (e.g. i pp. 178^6, 179^{10}).

(1) (Āghāz u anjām) : see Ḥall i usṭurlāb below.

(2) Bīst u chahār bāb, on the astrolabe : Najaf M. 'Alī Khwānsārī's library (see Dharī'ah iii p. 189 no. 674).

(3) Ḥall al-taqwīm (beg. Darakhshandah-tar sitāra'ī kih uṣ ufuq i maqāl), dedicated to Ghiyāth al-Dīn Manṣūr and divided into an āghāz and a number of fā'idahs : Najaf Tustarīyah

(A.H. 917/1511. See Dharī'ah vii p. 67 no. 357), Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., nos. 44 (13 foll. A.H. 971/1563–4), 45 (28 foll.).

Abridgment by the author himself: Muntakhab (or Intikhāb) i Ḥall al-taqwīm (beg. Ba'd az ḥ. u th. u ṣalāt u du'ā makhfī nīst), in a muqaddamah, one maqālah (subdivided into lam'ahs) and a khātimah: Dharī'ah ii p. 358, Ethé 2249 (A.H. 1106/1694), 2248, Aumer 346 (7) (defective at end), Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 159.

(4) (Ḥall i usṭurlāb),[1] or (Risālah i usṭurlāb), or, as it is called in the Dharī'ah, Āghāz u anjām (beg. Khūbtarīn ṣūratī kih az ḥujrah), in an āghāz, several (according to the Dharī'ah twenty-three) saṭrs and an anjām: Bānkīpūr xvii 1651 (foll. 87–131. Probably A.H. 1051/1641–2), Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 60 (not later than A.H. 1067/1657), Mishkāt iii/2 p. 831 no. 1044 (A.H. 1071/1661), Najaf 'Alī M. Najafābādī's lib. (A.H. 1122/1710), Rehatsek p. 34 no. 60 (3) (?).

(5) Iḥkām al-aḥkām[2] (beg. Wa-'l-isti'ān [sic] mina 'llāhi 'l-'Azīzi 'l-Ḥakīm wa-'indahu mafātiḥu 'l-ghaib), a catechism on astrology composed after the Ḥall i usṭurlāb (presumably no. (4) above), divided into lam'ahs and based on the Burhān al-kifāyah (cf. PL. ii p. 48), with additions from Ptolemy, etc.: Ṭihrān S. M. Nāṣir Ṭihrānī (Dharī'ah i p. 292 no. 1524), Ross and Browne 139 (1) (12 pp. A.H. 1224/1809).

(6) (Risālah i masā'il)[3] (beg. Ghaib guftan na-buwad darkhwar i kas * 'Ālim al-Ghaib Khudā bāshad u bas), a catechism: Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 61 (presented by Ibn Khātūn[4]), Ross and Browne 270 (1) (18 foll. A.H. 1181/1767–8 (?)).

(7) Ṭāli'-nāmah (beg. (R.-B. 270 (2)) Faqīr i ḥaqīr A. 'l-Kh. M. al-T. al-F. dar-īn risālah kih mausūm ast ba-Ṭ.-n.): Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS. no. 157 (beg. F. i ḥ. A. 'l-Kh. M.

[1] In the Iḥkām al-aḥkām (R.-B. 139 (1)) the author refers to a work of this title as an earlier work of his.

[2] Title from the Dharī'ah: no title is mentioned in Ross and Browne.

[3] In the Mashhad catalogue the title is given as Ṭāli' i masā'il, the first word being apparently a slip, or a misprint, for Risālah, since the alphabetical arrangement requires a word beginning with rā'. No title is mentioned in R.-B., where the work is described as a treatise on nativities.

[4] Cf. PL. i pp. 51^{2}, 1226^{11}.

al-T. F. Not later than A.H. 1067/1657), Ross-Browne 270 (2) (A.H. 1181/1767–8 ?), Rehatsek p. 33 no. 60 (?).

(8) Taqrīr al-Taḥrīr, mentioned in Dharī'ah iv p. 366 as a work of this author (MS. in the Rājah of Maḥmūdābād's library), is probably the Taqrīb al-Taḥrīr of Abū 'l-Khair Khair Allāh "Muhandis" (for which see PL. ii p. 37 supra).

124. Quṭb al-Dīn ibn [so Dharī'ah] Sulṭān-Muḥammad al-Qā'ī [?],[1] or, as in the Bānkīpūr catalogue, Q. al-D. S.-M. [not b. S.-M.] al-Qādī.

(Bīst bāb dar ma'rifat i taqwīm), or (Risālah i taqwīm) (beg. al-Ḥ. l. 'l. kh. 'l-falaka 'l-dawwār), a short untitled tract on the computation of almanacs, the motions of the planets, their influence on human life, the globe, etc., composed in 964/1557 and divided into a muqaddamah and twenty bābs: Bānkīpūr Suppt. ii 2302 (circ. A.H. 1066/1656), Najaf Ḥusainīyah ('Alī āl Kāshif al-Ghiṭā') and Tustarīyah (Najafābādī) (Dharī'ah iii p. 188 no. 672).

125. Maẓhar al-Dīn M. al-qāri' b. Bahā' al-Dīn 'Alī is the author of works composed in 962/1554–5 (see PL. i p. 1227[2]) and at Shīrāz in 961–8/1554–61 (see PL. ii p. 71[14]).

Risālah i 'amal al-ṭālī' (doubtless in Persian): Kāẓimīyah Sh. 'Abd Allāh al-kutubī (A.H. 1023/1614. Dharī'ah vii p. 67[3]).

126. In 969/1561–2 was composed:

Tuḥfat al-munajjimīn min anīs al-munajjimīn (beg. Subḥānaka lā 'ilma lanā illā mā 'allamta wa-alhamta lanā): Chanykov 129b.

127. 'Abd al-Mun'im 'Āmilī.

(Risālah dar ālāt i raṣadīyah) (beg. Rabbanā mā khalaqta hādhā bāṭilan subḥānaka fa-qinā 'adhāba 'l-nār[2]), on the instruments used in the observatories of Alexandria, Marāghah, Samarqand and elsewhere, composed at Iṣfahān by order of the reigning Shāh [Ṭahmāsp, 930–84/1524–76] nearly three hundred years after the completion of Naṣīr al-Dīn's Tables [and therefore circ. A.H. 970/1562–3]: Rieu ii 458b (preface defective. A.H. 1112/1700–1).

[1] Perhaps a misprint for al-Qā'inī.

[2] Cf. Qur'ān iii 188. Bahā' al-Dīn 'Āmilī's Tashrīḥ al-aflāk begins with the same words.

128. 'Abd al-Raḥīm b. Ṣāliḥ Muḥammad b. Nāṣir al-Dīn Ṣiddīqī Fakhrī dedicated the following three works to Ibrāhīm 'Ādil-Shāh (A.H. 987–1035/1579–1626):

(1) Ghāyat al-taḥarrī (beg. Ḥ. mar 'Alīmī rā kih dar karīmah i Hādhā khalqu 'llāhi), a short tract on the determination of the qiblah: Ivanow 1494 (1) (18th cent. ?).

(2) Minhāj al-taḥqīq, in Arabic, on the astrolabe: Ivanow 1494 (2).

(3) (Risālah dar usṭurlāb) (beg. Dānā-yi zamānhā u makānhā hamah Ūst): see PL. ii p. 54[26].

129. Jalāl al-Dīn M. b. 'Abd Allāh Yazdī was "apparently" ('alā 'l-ẓāhir) an astronomer of the early eleventh/seventeenth century under the Ṣafawids. Doubtless he is the J. al-D. M. Yazdī already mentioned (PL. i, pp. 308, 1280).

Tuḥfat al-munajjimīn (beg. Ilāhī bi-ḥamdika abtadi'u): Dharī'ah iii p. 472, Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 26 (A.H. 1056/1646).

130. Bahā' al-Dīn M. b. Ḥusain al-'Āmilī died at Iṣfahān in 1031/1622 (see PL. ii p. 11).

(1) al-Ṣafīḥah, in some MSS., but incorrectly, it seems, al-Ṣaḥīfah and al-Ṣafḥah, (beg. Irtafa'at darajātu jabarūtika) an Arabic treatise on the astrolabe, short enough to be written on the plate (ṣafīḥah) of an astrolabe: I.Ḥ. 2055 (al-Ṣaḥīfah), Brockelmann ii p. 415, Sptbd. ii p. 595, Majlis 206 (6), 642 (6), etc.

Persian commentary (with the text): Anīs al-aḥbāb fī bayān masā'il [al-] usṭurlāb (beg. Jahān jahān muqanṭarāt i taḥmīd), composed in 1234/1818–19 by Abū 'l-Qāsim known as (al-mushtahir bi-) Ghulām-Ḥusain b. Fatḥ-Muḥammad Karbalā'ī Jaunpūrī (cf. PL. ii p. 19): Bānkipūr xi 1063 (A.H. 1246/1830).

(2) Tashrīḥ al-aflāk (beg. Rabbanā mā khalaqta hādhā bāṭil[an] [1] . . .), an Arabic manual of astronomy, for which see Brockelmann ii p. 414 ult., Sptbd. ii p. 595.

Persian commentaries: (a) Sharḥ i Tashrīḥ al-aflāk, by 'Iṣmat

[1] Cf. Qur'ān iii 188.

Allāh b. A'ẓam b. 'Abd al-Rasūl Sahāranpūrī,[1] probably identical with the commentary by this author which according to S. Sulaimān Nadwī (Proceedings of the Idara-i-Maarif-i-Islamia, first session . . . [cf. PL. ii p. 15[16]] p. 36) is entitled Bāb i Tashrīḥ al-aflāk, was composed in 1086 and has been printed: Lahore Panjāb Univ. (A.H. 1087/1676, probably autograph. See OCM. x/3 (May 1934) p. 104). (b) Tarjamah i Tashrīḥ al-aflāk (beg., without preface, Rabbanā mā khalaqta hādhā bāṭil[an] Iftitāḥ i 'ajīb ast), a translation and commentary of unknown authorship: Bānkīpūr xi 1053 (A.H. 1244/1829).

(3) Tuḥfah i Ḥātimī, called also Haftād bāb, (beg. al-Ḥ. l. R. al-'Ā. . . . wa-ba'd chūn dar-īn waqt), a short work on the astrolabe dedicated to Mīrzā Ḥātim Bēg, Shāh 'Abbās I's Wazīr [d. 1019/1610: see Tārīkh i 'ālam-ārāy i 'Abbāsī p. 585[23], Rieu i p. 185b]: I.Ḥ. 478, Dharī'ah iii p. 425 no. 1540, Bodleian 1508 (title not mentioned in the catalogue. 22 foll. A.H. 1177/1763), iii 2827 (7), Ma'ārif ii 335 (A.H. 1223/1808), Majlis 159 (39 foll. A.H. 1240/1824–5), Āṣafīyah i p. 808 no. 160, Nūr i 'Uthmānīyah 2899, possibly also Rehatsek p. 32 no. 58 (2).

1067/1656–7 seems to be indicated by the fact that a MS. transcribed in that year (Tashrīḥ dar pargār, Mashhad iii, fṣl. 17, MSS., no. 39 : cf. Dharī'ah iv p. 188[17]) contains marginal notes in his handwriting. That he was born (at least about eighteen years) before 1000/1592 should follow from the date of Rehatsek p. 14 no. 21, but this date (as well perhaps as that of the Mashhad MS.) needs verification.

Mu'tamad Khān, cited by Rieu, iii p. 1088*a*) he died at Jainagar (now called Jaipūr, the town founded by him as the capital of his state) on 13 Sha'bān 1156/2 Oct. 1743.

Having represented to Muḥammad Shāh that the current almanacs, based on the Zīj of Ulugh Bēg (cf. PL. ii p. 67), the Zīj i Khāqānī (PL. ii p. 67) and the tashīlāt composed in Akbar's reign by Mullā Chānd and in Shāh-Jahān's reign by Mullā Farīd (PL. ii p. 89), were all more or less incorrect, he was ordered to undertake new observations with the help of Muslim, Brāhman and European astronomers. Instruments similar to those used at Samarqand and later some of his own invention were manufactured at Delhi and for seven years observations were carried on concurrently at Delhi, Jaipūr, Muttra [Mat'hurā], Benares and Ujjain. Then some competent persons were sent to Europe with Padre Manoel and brought back with them the tables of [Philippe] de La Hire,[1] which were compared with his own results. 183. The author who wished to perpetuate his memory [1] by writing the 'Ajā'ib al-makẖlūqāt wa-ġharā'ib al-maujūdāt,[2] but whose name seems to be absent from the preface in all MSS. hitherto described, includes in his description of Hamadān a passage (quoted in the Būhār cat., p. 71), which implies that he was born and lived in that town. Some passages from his work are quoted in the 'Ajā'ib al-dunyā (cf. p. 124 infra) as from the 'Ajā'ib al-makẖlūqāt of Najīb Hamadānī (see Leningrad Acad. i Miklukho-Maklai) p. 24[5-13], where it is stated that in both works the passages do in fact agree). Ḥ. Kẖ., who gives the date of composition as 555, calls the author M. b. Maḥmūd b. Aḥmad al-Ṭūsī al-Salmānī and in the Browne MS. (but presumably not in the text) the work is "ascribed to" M. b. Maḥmūd b. Aḥmad "aṭ-Ṭírí (? aṭ-Ṭabarí)" [3] al-Salmānī.

184. The Arabic original of the Faḍā'il i Balkh was composed in 610/1213 by an author whose name, suspiciously inserted over an erasure in the unique MS. of the Persian translation, is given as Shaikh al-Islām Abū Bakr b. 'Abd Allāh [b. ?] 'Umar b. Dāwud al-Wā'iẓ Ṣafī al-Dīn al-Balkhī. A MS. dated 676/1278 came into the hands of the Qāḍī Majlis i 'ālī Ṣadr i kabīr Fakhr al-Dīn Abū Bakr 'Abd Allāh b. Abī 'l-Farīd al-Balkhī (whose name likewise is suspiciously substituted for some name erased) and at his command it was translated into Persian by an anonymous writer for the benefit of those who (like the qāḍī !) were ignorant of Arabic.

187. The author of the 'Ajā'ib al-dunyā[2] (unnamed in the acephalous and prefaceless Leningrad MS., but called Abū 'l-Mu'aiyad Abū Muṭī' al-Balkhī in the evidently spurious exordium of the Browne MS.) lived in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries and composed his work probably in the twenties of the latter century, not earlier at any rate than 617/1220. He seems to have lived under the Īldigizid Atābaks of Ādharbāyjān (A.H. 531–622/1136–1225) and had visited various places in Ādharbāyjān as well as Armenia, Arabian 'Irāq, the Ḥijāz, Ṭabaristān and possibly India. He was at one time a prisoner in Georgia. The spurious exordium of the Browne MS. says that the work was composed for Abū 'l-Qāsim Nūḥ b. Manṣūr [the Sāmānid, A.H. 366–87/976–97].

[1] The date 665/1266–7 given by Blochet as that of the completion of the work by the author is presumably a date of transcription reproduced in a later MS.

[2] This title occurs on fol. 188b (presumably at the beginning of " Part II ") in the Leningrad MS. The work is called 'Ajā'ib al-ashyā' in the spurious exordium of the Browne MS., but 'Ajā'ib al-dunyā seems to occur elsewhere in that MS., since Browne gives it as an alternative title.

'Ajā'ib al-dunyā (beg. (spuriously) in the Browne MS.: *Risālah i 'Ajā'ib al-ashyā' mın kalām i Abū Muṭī' al-Balkhī . . . Bi-smi 'llāhi . . . Ch. g. Abū 'l-Mu'aiyad A. In the reign of al-Musta'ṣim, the last 'Abbāsid Caliph (640–56/1241–58), he was Qāḍī of Wāsiṭ and al-Ḥillah. He died in 682/1283.

[3] Sh. Jalāl al-Dīn [?] Ḥamzah [?] Isfarāyinī, a disciple of S. Ni'mat Allāh Walī [d. 834/1431: see PL. i p. 952[1], etc.] and a panegyrist of Shāh-Rukh [d. 850/1447] and other rulers, went to India after a pilgrimage to Mecca and lived for a time at the court of Aḥmad Shāh Bahmanī [reigned 825–38/1422–35]. On his return to Isfarāyin, where he died in 866/1461–2, he fulfilled a promise made to Aḥmad Shāh by sending to Bīdar periodical instalments of a Bahmanīnah [no MSS. recorded ?], in which, according to Firishtah, he narrated the history down to the reign of Humāyūn Shāh Bahmanī [862–5/1457–61], later continuations being the work of "Nazīrī", "Sāmi'ī" and other poets. 195. Abū 'l-Ḥasan Ṣā'id b. According to Uylenbroek, Iracae Persicae descrip-tio, p. 5, the date of his death was given as 881/1476–7 in a MS. of H. Kh. belonging to Baron D'Ohsson.

[1] So 'Abd al-Muqtadir, but it is not clear whether this vocalisation is con-ventural or not. In the Āṣafīyah catalogue the word is written BSTGĪ. The correct reading may be Bastakī, from Bastak near Lār.

[2] In the Āṣafīyah catalogue the title is given as 'Ajā'ib al-makhlūqāt and the work is described as tarjamah i 'A. al-m. i 'Arabī. 'Abd al-Muqtadir describes it as a translation, not of al-Qazwīnī's 'A. al-m., but of "another Arabic cosmo-graphical work containing similar matter".

For the ikhtitām, or geographical appendix, to the Ḥabīb al-siyar (beg. Ba'd az ḥ. u th.-yi Ṣānī' i jahān i gharābat-āyīn),[3] which was completed by Khwānd-Amīr in 930/1524 and which (to some extent identical with the khātimah to the Rauḍat al-ṣafā') deals with the wonders of the world (remarkable countries, cities, etc., arranged alphabetically under the Seven Climes, seas, rivers, springs and wells, islands and mountains, strange creatures, men, animals, etc.), see PL. i pp. 104–6, 1237–8.

199. Sulṭān-Muḥammad b. Darwīsh-Muḥammad al-muftī al-Balkhī was both a native and a resident of Balkh. Among the earliest events of his life which Rieu found recorded in the Majma' al-gharā'ib is a journey from Balkh to Kābul in 935/1528–9.

Majma' al-gharā'ib (beg. Subḥānaka lā 'ilma . . . U'jūbah-nigār i 'ālam . . . a. b. ma'rūḍ i ḍamīr i munīr), on cosmography, geography, marvels, etc. (very popular, according to Miklukho-Maklai, in Central Asia until the 19th century inclusive), existing apparently in two editions, one dedicated [4] to Pīr-Muḥammad

[1] Majlis 619(5) is evidently another copy of this khātimah and there is one more (according to information received from A. J. Arberry) at the London School of Oriental and African Studies (Persian 32).

[2] It may be noted that the title 'Ajā'ib al-buldān is that by which this book is cited as a work of 'Abd al-'Alī Birjandī in the Majma' al-gharā'ib of Sulṭān-Muḥammad Balkhī (see the passage reproduced on p. 65[12] of Miklukho-Maklai's catalogue).

[3] In the Bombay edition of 1273/1857 this appendix fills 48 separately numbered pages at the end of vol. iii, pt. 4.

[4] Circ. 977/1569–70 according to Miklukho-Maklai, who finds evidence (which he does not quote) for this approximate date on fol. 21a [apparently at the end of ch. 2] in his MS. no. 15. Before final acceptance of this date the passage in question would need investigation as a possible addition to the original text.

Here again the possibility that this is a later insertion must be considered. In the Mishkāt MS. the last event is a death in 1003.

200. The Tuḥfah i 'ain al-ḥayāt, if that is its correct title, contains in the Bodleian MS. 421 a dedication to a certain Sulṭān Maḥmūd Khān. The date of composition is not stated according to Ethé, but the year 968/1560–1 is referred to in connexion with a discussion of eras. At that date a Sulṭān Maḥmūd Khān b. Muẓaffar was reigning in Gīlān (see Zambaur Manuel de généalogie . . . p. 194), and he can scarcely be other than the dedicatee, since, according to Ivanow, "It may be safely taken that the author was an inhabitant of the N.-W. of Persia, and in fact he shows a much better knowledge of those provinces."

Tuḥfah i 'ain al-ḥayāt (?) [1] (beg.: see PL. ii p. 82[13]), a short cosmography in a muqaddamah, "three" (really four) maqālahs (for the subjects of which see PL. ii p. 82) and, in some MSS. (e.g. Bodleian 421 and Leningrad Acad. i 54), a khātimah (dar bayān i samt i qiblah): Ivanow Curzon 91 (defective. 75 foll. Late 16th cent.), Bānkīpūr xi 1048 (53 foll. [1] This title, probably spurious, but perhaps acceptable provisionally, comes from Bodleian 421, but whether it occurs in the text or merely on a title-page is not stated. On the title-page of Bānkīpūr vii 635 the work is called 'Ajā'ib al-buldān. Other MSS. have Risālah i hai'at or the like.

204. For the Haft iqlīm, which was completed in 1002/1593–4 by Amīn ibn Aḥmad Rāzī and which, though mainly biographical, contains very brief geographical and historical accounts of the countries, provinces and towns under which the biographies are arranged, see PL. i pp. 1169, 1353.

'Ajā'ib al-ṭabaqāt (beg. Ghāyat i sa'ādat i abadī), a mainly geographical and cosmographical work in seven ṭabaqahs (which are not always arranged in the same order and which in some MSS. are followed by a brief conclusion), composed in the reign of Raḥmat Allāh Atakī Kan'ānī and of which the khātimah is concerned with geography (in three bābs, (1) on various eras and the Seven Climes, (2) cities, countries, mountains, deserts, seas, lakes, rivers, springs, wells, and islands in ten faṣls, (3) wonders of nature in nineteen faṣls), see PL. i p. 127.

207. Mīrzā M. Ṣādiq b. M. Ṣāliḥ Iṣfahānī Āzādānī was born at Sūrat in 1018/1609 and died in Bengal in 1061/1651 (see PL. i pp. 125–6, 1241–2). As already mentioned, the fourth mujallad of his Ṣubḥ i ṣādiq (completed in 1048/1638–9) is geographical, but that volume seems to be absent from all the MSS. hitherto recorded. In his Shāhid i ṣādiq (begun in 1054/1644–5: see PL. i p. 125) the khātimah is "an alphabetical list of proper names of places and men, with fixation of their spelling,[2] and short notices" (Rieu ii 776a), while the 51st faṣl of Bāb iv contains maps of the Seven Climes and an alphabetical list of places with their longitude and latitude. The aforesaid khātimah minus the names of persons is the "Taḥqīq al-i'rāb" (Bodleian 104) and the 51st faṣl minus the maps is the "Taqwīm al-buldān" (Bodleian 103), of which an English translation (accompanied in the case of the latter only with the Persian text) was published by the Oriental

[1] Nadir, not Nādir nor Nadhr, (NDR, with dāl, not dhāl: see the page reproduced from the oldest Leningrad MS. in Miklukho-Maklai's catalogue, p. 81b, l. 13) seems to be the correct spelling of this name, though the spelling Nadhr Muḥammad Khān is usual in the works of Indian writers (the names Nadhr Muḥammad and Nadhr 'Alī being in fact current in India). NDR Muḥammad Khān is the spelling used in the lithographed text of the Tārīkh i 'ālam-ārāy i 'Abbāsī (vol. iii p. 677 penult.: cf. vol. ii p. 588 penult. (NDR M. Sulṭān) and vol. iii p. 653[13] (NDR Ṭaghāy)) as well as in the writings of Russian scholars presumably familiar with Jānid names.

[2] The fixation is not precise enough to save J. C. from some obvious misspellings in his English translation. The list, 57 pages in J. C.'s translation, foll. 17–26 in Bodleian 104, is unfortunately rather short, but it is not without interest.

Jihān-numā a geography in Turkish extant in two editions, both uncompleted, viz. (1) begun in 1058/1648 (see Babinger Geschichtsschreiber p. 197), (2) continued after the author's death by Abū Bakr b. Bahrām and extant not only in MS. but also, as regards pt. 1 (the geography of Asia), in print (Istānbūl 1145/1732, 698 pp. folio: see Babinger pp. 199–200) and in an incomplete Latin translation (Gihan Numa, geographia orientalis ex Turcico in Latinum versa a Matthaeo Norberg, Londini Gothorum [i.e. at Lund, in Sweden] 1818°. It is not clear what Latin work [1] was the original of:

215. Shāh-Jahān's wife, Arjmand Bānū Bēgam, entitled Mumtāz-Maḥall and through corruption of this title known popularly in later times as Tāj-Maḥall or Tāj Bībī, died at Burhānpūr on 17 Dhū 'l-Ḥijjah 1040/7 July (O.S.) 1631 and lies entombed at Āgrah in a splendid mausoleum which contemporary historians [1] call the Rauḍah i Mumtāz-al-Zamānī but which is now best known as the Tāj Maḥall or the Tāj (cf. Ency. Isl. under Tādj Maḥall (Haig)). An account of the Tāj Maḥall and of the inscriptions on some other buildings at Āgrah beginning with a biographical note on Mumtāz-Maḥall, the heading of which sometimes provides a quasi-title, is preserved in a number of MSS., which do not always agree closely in content. The oldest of those adequately described is more than a hundred years later than the building of the mausoleum, and the book seems to be an eighteenth-century fabrication without historical value.[2]

(Tārīkh i Rauḍah i Mumtāz-Maḥall), an account of the death of Mumtāz-Maḥall, verses by Shāh-Jahān in praise of her tomb, certain inscriptions (on Akbar's tomb, on some large guns and a throne in the Fort at Āgrah, on Shāh-Jahān's tomb, on the Mōtī Masjid and the Dīwān i Khāṣṣ), particulars concerning the semi-precious stones used for the decoration of the Tāj Maḥall, its architects, weights and measurements of the stones and the wood, the climate of Āgrah, inscriptions on the Fort at Āgrah, Akbar's visit to Mu'īn al-Dīn Chishtī's tomb and to Salīm Chishtī, the chronology of the Tīmūrids to 'Azīz al-Dīn ['Ālamgīr II, A.H. 1167–73/1754–59], inscriptions on the gate of the Tāj Maḥall, the measurements and cost of its various parts, etc.:

Probably this is the same work as the Tārīkh i Tāj Maḥall u maṣārif i ta'mīr i ān, of which the author's name is given as Mīrzā Mughul Bēg in the Āṣafīyah catalogue, i p. 224 no. 416 (or 419) (A.D. 1876).

240. Nawwāb Iqbāl al-Daulah Muḥsin 'Alī Khān b. Shams

al-Daulah Aḥmad 'Alī Khān [1] b. Sa'ādat-'Alī Khān, born 15 March 1808, came to England in January 1838 to urge his claims to the throne of Oudh. Having failed to gain his object, he retired to Baghdād (perhaps more precisely Karbalā [2]) and died there on 21 December 1887. He was created G.C.S.I. in 1882. [Beale Oriental biographical dictionary p. 180; Buckland Dictionary of Indian biography p. 215; Niẓāmī Badāyūnī Qāmūs al-mashāhīr (in Urdu) i p. 88. For a portrait at India House see W. 241. 'Abd al-Razzāq Iṣfahānī, having found his countrymen crafty and deceitful, went to the Turkish frontier (sarḥadd i Rūm) in the hope of making a congenial friend. There too, however, he remained unsatisfied and he was cherishing the idea of travelling to Europe, when at Tabrīz he made the acquaintance of the British physicians John Cormick [3] and John McNeill.[4] He greatly enjoyed their society for a time, but both of them

[1] Shams al-Daulah was the third son of Sa'ādat-'Alī Khān (Nawwāb-Wazīr of Oudh 1212–29/1798–1814) and a younger brother of Ghāzī al-Dīn Ḥaidar (Nawwāb-Wazīr 1229/1814, King of Oudh 1234–43/1819–27).

[2] In the Būstān i Awadh, p. 112[19], he is described as resident at Karbalā.

[3] Cormick was attached to the suite of Sir John Malcolm on his third mission to Persia [in 1810: see Elgood A medical history of Persia p. 445[1]]. After the withdrawal of that mission he became surgeon with the army of the heir apparent 'Abbās Mīrzā at Tabrīz [Elgood p. 446], and there he seems to have remained except for short absences [cf. Elgood pp. 412, 446] until his summons to Tihrān in 1833, the year of his death [Elgood pp. 465[9], 466; G. Fowler Three years in Persia I (London, 1841) p. 330].

[4] Dr. (afterwards Sir) John McNeill, b. 1795, assistant surgeon at Bombay 1816, was from 1824 to 1835 " attached to the East India Company's legation in Persia, at first in medical charge, and latterly as political assistant to the envoy " [so DNB., but the date 1824 seems to be inconsistent with Elgood's statement (p. 450[7]) that he " had been acting as physician to the mission since 1818 " and this statement in its turn conflicts with the information in the DNB. that " He was attached to the field force under Colonel East in Cutch and Okamundel in 1818–19 " and " was afterwards deputy medical storekeeper at the presidency "]. In 1836 he was appointed envoy and minister plenipotentiary to the Persian court, in 1842 he left Persia and he died at Cannes on 17 May 1883.

left Tabrīz,[1] and 'Abd al-Razzāq transferred himself to Urūmiyah. He was living pleasantly there, when he had the misfortune to meet a former acquaintance, Raḥmat Allāh Khān, the Governor of Ushnūyah,[2] who took him to that town. In spite of much kindness on the part of Raḥmat Allāh Khān he was unhappy at Ushnūyah among a people of foreign speech and he wrote the Aḥwāl i Ushnūyah to occupy his mind and forget his sorrows.

Aḥwāl i Ushnūyah u Urūmiyah (beg. Gum gashtah i wādī i bī-sāmānī 'Abd al-Razzāq i Iṣfahānī), an account of Ushnūyah and Urūmiyah and their inhabitants[3]: Flügel ii 1273.

Akademie der Wissenschaften in Wien, phil.-hist. Classe, Bd. cxxxiii, 3).

242. S. M. Riḍā "Najm" Ṭabāṭabā has already been mentioned as the author of works composed in the years 1231–64/1816–48 (see PL. i pp. 148–9, 488, 523, 901, 1245).

Khwurshīd i lāmi', or Manẓar al-'ālam, a geographical work: Rieu iii 1014b (extracts only. Circ. A.D. 1850).

243. Ratan La'l (the Madrās cat. adds: b. Chapna La'l[4] Kāyat)[5].

[1] It is not clear whether in Cormick's case this refers to his final departure in 1833, since, as already mentioned, he had been absent on previous occasions. So far as can be ascertained from Elgood's Medical history. McNeill was only occasionally in Tabrīz. in 1831 for example [Elgood p. 419 ult.], and again apparently in the following year [Elgood p. 460 ult.]. More than once he was called to Tabrīz to operate on 'Abbās Mīrzā for fistula [Elgood p. 457], presumably towards the end of his life [he died in 1833].

[2] See the article Ushnūyah (Minorsky) in the Ency. Isl. The word is transliterated ocnoviyye [i.e. Ushnuwīyah] in the Farhang i jughrāfiyā'ī i Īrān iv p. 24.

[3] The date of composition is given in the MS. as A.H. 123 [sic], which Bittner emends into 1230 (text, p. 36[2]), but that date (= 1815) cannot be correct, since it is anterior to McNeill's arrival in Persia.

[4] Probably a corruption of Chaman La'l (for which name cf. Garcin de Tassy i p. 381).

(2) Risālah i jughrāfiyah (beg. Ba'd i ḥamd i Khāliq al-Arḍ wa-l-Samāwāt), composed in 1251/1835–6 for Nawwāb 'Umdat al-Daulah Bahādur [cf. PL. ii p. 100], son of Shams al-Umarā' Bahādur : Madrās i 510 (A.H. 1258/1842).

244. Āqā 'Abbās, a native of Shīrāz who had seen some military service in Afghānistān, was introduced to R. Leech [1] at Multān by the latter's servants as a man professing some knowledge of farriery and undertook to cure one of his horses. Subsequently, with a Persian writer ('Abbās himself being illiterate), two guides and a servant, " all habited and equipped as fakeers," he left Peshawar on a tour planned by Leech.

[3] Or rather, it would seem, Allāh-dād, the spelling with a single lām (usually transliterated Ilāh-dād by European orientalists) being apparently a conventional nasta'līq spelling. Ṭālib Khān Afghān Sarban,[3] having been invited to England by the Admiralty for the purpose of acquainting himself with the latest astronomical instruments, left Delhi in September 1839 and remained in London until November 1841. A manuscript of the Urdu Siyāḥat-nāmah in which he described this visit to England was in the possession of Garcin de Tassy,[4] who published in the Revue de l'Orient for 1865 an abridged French translation of the first two parts (i.e. from Delhi to Calcutta and from Calcutta to London). In Dhū 'l-Qa'dah 1261/November 1845 Karīm Khān visited the tomb of Quṭb al-Dīn Bakhtyār Kākī (for whom see PL. i p. 943 ult.) and at an interview with the Governor General, Lord Henry Hardinge [sic [5]], he was asked to write an account of the ancient buildings of Delhi. [1] "The history of the كتاب كيلان (Dorn, Bericht) est assez amusante. Its author was named—if I am not mistaken—Mirza Ibrahim and was a semi-literate monshi who accompanied Mackenzie [Capt. F. Mackenzie, author of Report on the Persian Caspian provinces, Resht, 1859–60, unpublished: see Rabino Mázandarán and Astarábád, p. 13 n.2] then HBM Consul at Resht on his tour in Mazandaran, Astarabad, Damghan, etc. This monshi probably sold a copy of his notes to Melgunoff, who reproduces them practically word for word... The faulty spelling is really remarkable and was recopied by Melgunoff ... When searching for material for my work on Gilan I managed to locate the descendants of this Mirza Ibrahim and obtained from them the loan of the original pocket notebook of Mirza Ibrahim all written in pencil!!" Two of his works have already been mentioned in this survey (PL. i p. 1299). Others are recorded in the Dharī'ah, e.g. iii p. 236 no. 871 (Tārīkh al-anbiyā'), p. 297 no. 1107 (Tārīkh i yaumīyah i Īrān, 36 volumes), viii p. 18 no. 4 (Dā'irat al-ma'ārif, in five large volumes). Neither MSS. nor printed editions of these three works are mentioned in the Dharī'ah. According to the Tārīkh i jarā'id . . . he wrote about one hundred volumes on history and other subjects.

Jughrāfiyā-yi Kāshān, for children, begun in 1328/1910: Ma'ārif ii 301 (26 foll.).

286. Mīrzā Sirāj al-Dīn b. 'Abd al-Ra'ūf, a Bukhārā merchant, wrote :

Tuḥaf i ahl i Bukhārā, adventures in foreign lands : Tashkent Acad. i 402 (190 foll. A.H. 1329/1911, autograph).

Edition : Bukhārā 1330/1912 (see Semenov Kurzer Abriss p. 10).

287. Fakhr al-Wā'iẓīn S. M. Bāqir Ḥusainī Khalkhālī died at Ardabīl in 1337/1918–19 (see Dānishmandān i Ādharbāyjān p. 294).

(1) Jannāt i thamāniyah, an account of Mecca, Medina, Jerusalem, Najaf, Karbalā', Kāẓimain, Sāmarrā', and Mashhad, with a khātimah on Qum, begun in 1327/1909 and completed in 1331/1913 : Mashhad iii, fṣl. 14, MSS., no. 28 (A.H. 1331/1913, autograph. Cf. Dharī'ah v p. 150 no. 644).

(2) Mashāhid al-bilād wa-ma'ārif al-'ibād (in Persian?) : autograph MS. in possession of S. Abū 'l-Futūḥ 'Alawī Khalkhālī (Dānishmandān . . ., loc. cit.).

288. Qāḍī S. M. Nūr al-Ḥusain b. Tabāruk Ḥusain.

Āthār i sharaf, an account, mainly historical, of the province of Bihār : Patna [1914*] (Rājanīti Pr. 100 pp.).

289. Ḥasan Khān Manṭiq al-Mulk (cf. PL. i p. 242 (8)).

Jughrāfiyā-yi bā-naqshah : printed (see Dhari'ah v p. 114 no. 467).

290. S. M. 'Alī Jamāl-zādah,[1] well-known as a writer of fiction, was born at Iṣfahān in, or about, 1897 and received the later part of his education at Bairūt and in France. For fifteen years he was attached to the Persian legation at Berlin and since 1931 he has been connected with the International Labour Office at Geneva. He wrote for the periodical Kāwah (cf. Browne Lit. Hist. iv p. 488[1]) and later edited 'Ilm u hunar (Berlin 1917–18).

Ganj i shāygān yā auḍā' i iqtiṣādī i Īrān : Berlin 1335/1917° (Kāwayānī Pr. 219 pp., 1 map. Edwards col. 610).

291. For al-Iṣfahān [sic], begun in Shawwāl 1342/May 1924 by Mīr S. 'Alī Janāb (cf. Browne Press and poetry p. 70 (126) ; M. Ṣadr Hāshimī Tārīkh i jarā'id . . . i pp. 245–8), see PL. i p. 1293, Wilber p. 270.

292. S. Nūr al-Dīn b. M. Sharīf b. M. Mūsawī, a descendant of S. Ni'mat Allāh Jazā'irī (for whom see Browne Lit. Hist. iv pp. 360–7 ; Brockelmann Sptbd. ii p. 586) and on his mother's side a grandson of Sh. M. 'Alī b. Ja'far Shūshtarī, was born in 1316/1899.

Khūzistān-nāmah, on the geography, history and biography of Khūzistān in three large volumes : Dharī'ah iii p. 252 no. 935, vii p. 277 no. 1354 (where nothing is said about MSS. or printed editions).

293. Maulawī[1] Burhān al-Dīn Khān Kushkakī,[2] former editor of Iṣlāḥ, the first Afghān daily newspaper, was born in 1898. He became Secretary to Amān Allāh Khān (afterwards King Amān Allāh) in 1924 and from 1930 onwards he was Assistant Secretary to Nādir Shāh (who reigned 1348–52/1929–33). He was the first editor of the newspaper Ittiḥād i mashriqī published twice weekly at Jalālābād from 1919 onwards (cf. Tārīkh i jarā'id . . . i p. 50) and in the autumn of 1924 he was summoned to Kābul to edit Ḥaqīqat, which was published for a few months only during the Mangal insurrection.

[1] It may not be superfluous to mention that this title, which has occurred repeatedly in the present survey, is prefixed in India (and also in Afghānistān ?) to the name of an 'ālim.

[2] Kshkkī (not Kwshkkī) according to the spelling in the quotation from Burhān al-Dīn's title-page in Kattagan i Badakhshan, preface, p. x.

Rāh-numā-yi Qaṭaghan[1] u Badakhshān ya'nī mulakhkhaṣ i safar-nāmah i 1301 i Sipah-sālār i Ghāzī Sardār Muḥammad Nādir Khān Wazīr i Ḥarbīyah murattabah i janāb i Maulawī Burhān al-Dīn Khān i Kushkakī [so in Kattagan i Badakhshan, preface, p. x, where the place of publication, doubtless Kābul, and the date [A.H.S. 1302/1923–4 ?] are not mentioned].

Semenov, who has supplied a preface and notes], Tashkent 1926* (Obshchestvo dlya Izucheniya Tadzhikistana i Iranskikh Narodnostei za ego Predelami. Pp. xiii, 248; 34 maps).

294. M. 'Alī Khān is the author of Tārīkh, a school history of the world in modern times (Lahore A.H.S. 1305/1927*), and Tārīkh i 'umūmī, pt. 1 (the ancient world, Lahore A.H.S. 1306/1928*: see PL. i p. 1188 (22)).

Afghānistān, on the geography of Afghānistān: Lahore A.H.S. 1306/1927* (163 pp. Mufīd i 'Āmm Pr.).

295. S. Riḍā 'Alī-zādah translated (from Turkish originals in most cases, if not in all) a number of historical, geographical and other works, some of which have already been mentioned (PL. i pp. 156 (6), (7), 204 (3), 205 (5)). Of his Murāsalāt, model letters, at least four editions have been published (Lahore 1344/1926*; 1345/1927*; 1347/1928*; 1353/1934*). For some other works see Arberry p. 430.

(1) Tārīkh i milal, a series of popular geographies [translated from the Turkish] and published at Lahore (Mufīd i 'Āmm Pr.) in 1344/1926*, namely, (1) Zhāpūniyān (56 pp.); (2) Kōrahyā'iyān, on eastern Siberia [and Korea ?] (47 pp.); (3) Chīniyān (54 pp.); (4) Faransāwiyān (47 pp.); (5) Ingilīsiyān (56 pp.); (6) Ītāliyān (49 pp.); (7) Khīwah u Bukhārā (56 pp.); (8) Almāniyān (47 pp.); (9) Yahūdiyān (50 pp.).

[1] قطغن, spelled Kattagan by the Russian translators, but Kataghan in the Ency. Brit. The district does not seem to be mentioned in the Ency. Isl. article on Afghānistān. It is " so called after a Turkish tribe which, coming from Samarqand, occupied this region towards A.D. 1700, see Kūshkakī, p. 9 " (Minorsky's commentary on the Ḥudūd al-'ālam, p. 338).

(2) Turkistān, a geography of modern Turkistān translated by S. R. 'A.-z. and edited with a preface by Shēr M. Khān: Lahore 1345/1927* (373 pp. Mufīd i 'Āmm Pr.).

296. Raḥīm-zādah Ṣafawī is, inter alia, a historical novelist (cf. Oriens ix/1 (1956) p. 140[20]). For his Dāstān i Nādir Shāh i Afshār (pt. 1 (64 pp.) Tihrān A.H.S. 1310/1931–2) see Dharī'ah viii p. 40 no. 70) and for his Dāstān i Shahr-bānū (2nd ed. Jughrāfiyā-yi niẓāmī i Īrān: A.H.S. 1309/1930–1 (81 pp. Dharī'ah v p. 118 no. 484).

298. Mīrzā Ḥusain Gul-i-Gulāb is perhaps identical with the H. Gul-i-Gulab who appears in The World of Learning 1952 as Professor of Botany in the Medical Faculty of the University of Tihrān.

Daurah i jughrāfiyā: A.H.S. 1310/1931–2 (3 vols. Dharī'ah v p. 114[4]).

299. Aḥmad Iḥtisābiyān.

Jughrāfiyā-yi niẓāmī i Īrān. Editions: A.H.S. 1310/1931–2 (554 pp. Dharī'ah v p. 118 no. 483) and another of which the date is not mentioned in the Dharī'ah.

300. Mas'ūd Kaihān is Professor of Persian Geography in the University of Tihrān.

Jughrāfiyā-yi mufaṣṣal i Īrān: Tihrān A.H.S. 1310–11/1931–2 (3 vols. Cf. Dharī'ah v p. 116 no. 479 and V. Minorsky's description in Acta Orientalia xvi p. 54 as well as Wilber p. 275).

301. S. Jalāl al-Din b. 'Alī Shaikh al-Islām Tihrānī (see PL. i p. 1353, ii p. 103; Dharī'ah viii p. 218 no. 882).

Iṣfahān, a topographical account of Iṣfahān with short biographies of some celebrities buried there, composed after a visit to the town in Mihr-māh 1311/Sept.–Oct. 1932 and appended as pp. 76–160 to an almanac for 1312 (Gāh-nāmah i 1312, Ṭihrān 1351/1311/1933. Cf. PL. i p. 263[16]).

302. 'Abbās Iqbāl Āshtiyānī was born in 1314/1896–7 and died at Rome on 21 Bahman A.H.S. 1334/10 (?) Feb. 1956 (see PL. i pp. 1085, 1348[18]; Farhang i Īrān-zamīn iii/4 (A.H.S. 1334/1956) pp. 411–16 (obituary by Īraj Afshār, with portrait and list of works)).

(2) Kullīyāt i jughrāfiyā-yi iqtiṣādī : Tihrān A.H.S. 1315/1936–7 (221 pp. See F. i Ī.-z. p. 414[8]).

(3) Tārīkh i iktishāfāt i jughrāfiyā'ī u tārīkh i 'ilm i jughrāfiyā : Tihrān A.H.S. 1314/1935–6. (See F. i Ī.-z. p. 414[5].)

In addition to these he wrote geographical schoolbooks which have been printed several times (see F. i Ī.-z. p. 416[16-18]).

303. Ḥusain Nūr Ṣādiqī (b. 24 Shawwāl 1328/29 Oct. 1910 : cf. PL. i p. 1293).

Iṣfahān : Tihrān A.H.S. 1316/1937–8 (circ. 260 pp., 41 illustrations. Cf. Wilber p. 271).

304. S. 'Alī Akbar "Kāshif" b. Raḍī al-Dīn Burqa'ī Qummī, a descendant of Mūsā 'l-Mubarqa' b. Imām M. Taqī, was born at Qum on 11 Ramaḍān 1317/13 January 1900 (see Sukhanwarān i nāmī i mu'āṣir, by M. Bāqir Burqa'ī (his son), i p. 190 (portrait and list of twelve published works); M. 'Alī Mudarris Tabrīzī Raiḥānat al adab i pp. 153–4 (a different portrait and a list of sixteen works); PL. i pp. 1136[14], 1292).

305. Aḥmad Ṭāhirī's Tārīkh i Yazd (PL. i p. 1294) was published not at Tihrān but at the Gulbahār Press, Yazd, A.H.S. 1317/1938–9 (see Balāghī Tārīkh i Nā'īn, farhang p. 5).

306. For the Tārīkh i Yazd, completed A.H.S. 1317/1938–9

by 'Abd al-Ḥusain "Āyatī" (cf. Sukhanwarān i nāmī i mu'āṣir ii pp. 40–3), see PL. i p. 1294; Wilber p. 272.

307. Mukhbir al-Salṭanah Mahdī-qulī Khān Hidāyat b. 'Alī-qulī Khān Mukhbir al-Daulah b. Riḍā-qulī Khān "Hidāyat" Amīr al-Shu'arā' Māzandarānī (for the last of whom see PL. i pp. 906–13, etc.) succeeded A. C. Millspaugh [presumably in 1927] as Administrator General of Finances. He was Prime Minister in 1929 [?].

[S. Jalāl al-Dīn Ṭihrānī Gāh-nāmah i 1309 p. 249.]

Tuhfat al-āfāq : Tihrān A.H.S. 1317/1938–9 (762 pp. Dharī'ah v p. 114,[5] where the language, presumably Persian, is not stated).

Presumably this is the Hidāyat who, with Naiyir and Sīnā, was joint author of:

Jughrāfiyā-yi muṣawwar i 'ālam : Persia A.H.S. 1317/1938–9 (3 vols. See Dharī'ah v p. 116 no. 476).

308. 'Alī Aṣghar Shamīm.

Jughrāfiyā-yi 'umūmī : Persia A.H.S. 1317/1938–9 (Dharī'ah v p. 116 no. 474).

Jointly with Naṣr Allāh "Falsafī" (cf. PL. i pp. 1249 n., 1283 n.) he composed:

(1) Jughrāfiyā-yi mufaṣṣal i iqtiṣādī, in two volumes ((1) Persia, (2) Great Britain, France and Germany): A.H.S. 1318/1939–40 (Dharī'ah v p. 116 no. 478).

(2) Daurah i jughrāfiyā, in five volumes (Dharī'ah viii p. 277 no. 1177, where the date of publication is not stated).

309. Abū 'l-Qāsim Shukrā'ī.

Tārīkhchah i qismatī az bināhā-yi tārīkhī i kishwar, dealing, according to Wilber (p. 276), with a limited number of the more renowned sites, the descriptions based upon published material, the illustrations characteristically unsatisfactory: Iṣfahān A.H.S. 1318/1939.

310. 'Abbās Kadīwar is the author of a Tārīkh i Gīlān printed A.H.S. 1319/1940–1 (see Dharī'ah v p. 116[6]).

Jughrāfiyā-yi Gīlān : Dharī'ah v p. 116 no. 475 (where no further particulars are given).

311. "Rashīd" Yāsamī[1] (cf. PL. i pp. 919, 1340) died on 2 Sha'bān 1370/18 Urdībihisht 1330/10 May 1951 (see S. 'Abd al-Ḥamīd Khalkhālī Tadhkirah i shu'arā-yi mu'āṣir i Īrān, Tihrān A.H.S. 1333/1954–5, p. 181; S.M.'Alī Rauḍātī Zindagānī i . . . āyat Allāh i Chahārsūqī, Iṣfahān [1372/1953 ?] p. 91).

Kurd u paiwastagī i nizhādī u tārīkhī i ū: Tihrān [n.d.] (see Wilber p. 273).

312. M. Bahman Bahman-Bēgī.

'Urf u 'ādat dar 'ashāyir i Fārs, a "quite fascinating book" (Wilber): [Tihrān ?][2] A.H.S.1324/1946‡ (90 + 3 pp. Chāpkhānah i Shirkat i Maṭbū'āt (see back wrapper). Az intishārāt i "Bungāh i Ādhar", Khiyābān i Sa'dī (so on both title-page and front wrapper, but in my copy these words have been covered with gummed paper). Wilber p. 273).

313. Maḥmūd Bāwar.

Kūhgīlūyah u īlāt i ān: Gach-sārān A.H.S.1324/1945‡ (154 pp. With map, portraits, views and genealogical tables. Portraits of the author on p. 43 and facing pp. 114 and 152).

314. Muhandis M. 'Alī Mukhbir "Furūgh" [Shīrāzī] b. Sh. M. Kāẓim Fasā'ī was born A.H.S. 1288/1909–10 at Shīrāz. In 1313/1934–5 the Ministry of Foreign Affairs appointed him surveyor (muhandis i naqshah-bardār) to the commissions for the delimitation of the Persian frontiers. (2) Marzhā-yi Īrān: Tihrān A.H.S.1324/1945‡ (134 pp. 9 maps. No index).

(3) Naqshah-bardārī i 'ilmī u 'amalī: mentioned without date of publication in Sukhanwarān i nāmī i mu'āṣir ii p. 215.

(4) Naqshah i Īrān: mentioned ibid.

[1] This (in the form Yassami), not Yāsimī, is the spelling used in the biography contributed, doubtless by Yāsamī himself, to World biography, New York 1948, p. 5076.

[2] Wilber says Tihrān, but there seems to be no mention of Tihrān or of any other town. Streets named Khiyābān i Sa'dī exist both in Tihrān and in Shīrāz.

315. General 'Alī Razm-ārā b. Muḥammad Khān Razm-ārā, a professional soldier born A.H.S. 1280/1901–2 and educated at Saint-Cyr, became Army Chief of Staff and finally, in June 1950, Prime Minister. He was assassinated on 7 March 1951 (see The Times 8.3.51; the Daily Telegraph 8.3.51 (portrait)). In the course of his military career he had acquired an extensive knowledge of the geography of his country. Of his published works on this subject the most important is:

Jughrāfiyā-yi nizāmī i Īrān, in numerous volumes (some nineteen[1] according to Wilber p. 275) devoted to particular parts of the country (e.g. Eastern Ādharbāyjān, 116 pp., Tihrān A.H.S. 1320, Western Ādharbāyjān, 103 pp., A.H.S. 1320, Fārs, 207 pp., A.H.S. 1321),[2] published, according to Wilber, in the years 1320–5/1941–6, and " of unique value ", though unindexed and poorly edited (see Wilber p. 276$^{3-6}$, where inconsistent spellings and contradictory statements are referred to).

316. Ḥusain Baṣīrī is presumably identical with H. Bassiri who appears as Director of the Anthropological Museum, Teheran, in The World of Learning, 1955, p. 609.

Rāhnumā-yi Takht i Jamshīd: Tihrān A.H.S. 1325/1946 (cf. Wilber p. 273; Probsthain's Orientalia nova, no. 2 (1946–48) p. 26).

317. K. A. Dānishjū.

Khūzistān u Khūzistāniyān, " an unpretentious account of the author's travels . . ." (Wilber): Tihrān A.H.S. 1326/1947 (68 pp. Dharī'ah vii p. 277 no. 1354; Wilber p. 274).

318. Iqbāl Yaghmā'ī.

(1) Bisṭām u Bāyazīd i Bisṭāmī: Tihrān A.H.S. 1317/1938–9 (see PL. i p. 1345; Wilber p. 272).

(2) Jughrāfiyā-yi tārīkhī i Dāmghān: Tihrān A.H.S. 1326/1947–8 (cf. Wilber p. 272).

[1] Appreciably more, if several lectures on adjacent countries (e.g. Afghānistān, 55 pp., Qafqāzīyah, 33 pp., Turkiyah, 60 pp.) mentioned without dates of publication under this heading in the Dharī'ah are to be included.

[2] For a list, which includes some volumes described as in the press and is not necessarily complete (" fī mujalladāt 'adīdah kharaja minhā 'alā mā na'lam Ādharbāyjān i khāwarī, ay al-sharqī, . . . "), see Dharī'ah v (published A.H.S. 1323/1944) pp. 116–18.

319. Aḥmad Barīmānī, born at Sārī A.H.S.1284/1905–6, went to Russia in 1307/1928–9 at the expense of the Perso-Soviet Fishery Company (Shirkat i Shīlāt i Īrān u Shūrawī) to study ikhthyology and fishery. After his return to Persia he devoted a year to investigations on the south shore of the Caspian Sea and he was subsequently Director of Fisheries in Māzandarān, Gurgān and Gīlān (see ʿAbbās Shāyān Māzandarān ii pp. 165–6).

Daryā-yi Khazar yā Daryā-yi Māzandarān, on the history, geography, biology, etc., of the Caspian Sea: Tihrān A.H.S. 1326/1947 (see Wilber p. 274; Probsthain's Orientalia nova 2 (1946–8) p. 402; Dharīʿah viii p. 147, where the date is given as 1327).

320. ʿAbbās Shāyān (see PL. i p. 1353).

The Persian Ministry of the Interior has published: Asāmī i dihāt i kishwar, a list of 41,521 villages arranged according to administrative divisions without any general index: Tihrān A.H.S. 1323/1944–5 (see Dharī'ah v p. 240 n.1 and Jughrāfiyā u asāmī i dihāt i kishwar, vol. ii, preface, p. 11[26]).

An enlarged and improved edition of that work is:

327. 'Alī Sāmī had been Director of the Archæological Institute of Persepolis (Ra'īs i Bungāh i 'Ilmī i Takht i Jamshīd) for fourteen years in March 1954, when R. N. Sharp's translation of his "brief and summary accounts" of Persepolis was published. A portrait is given at the end of his Āthār i bāstānī i julgah i Marw-dasht, and on the back of the front cover of the same work there is a list of his other works, namely (1) Guzārish i ḥaffārīhā-yi Pāsārgād, (2) Khaṭṭ u taḥawwul i ān dar sharq i bāstān . . . [2] Though not strictly relevant, it may be excusable to mention here another work concerned with this part of Persia, namely, Tārīkh-chah i shu'arā-yi dū qarn i akhīr i Chahār Maḥāll u Bakhtyārī (so in the preface, l. 4, but the wording differs slightly elsewhere), by Colonel Abū 'l-Fatḥ Auzhan Bakhtyārī, Tihrān A.H.S. 1332/1953–4‡ (for the author see S. Muṣliḥ al-Dīn Mahdawī Tadhkirah i shu'arā-yi mu'āṣir i Iṣfahān, Iṣfahān A.H.S. 1334, p. 72).

[3] According to Ja'far Āl i Ibrāhīm's preface, p. [vii], vol. ii (then, and presumably still, unpublished) is concerned with the rest of the bulūk of Rār, Kiyār and Gandumān, while vol. iii (likewise unpublished) deals with Mīzdaj and Bakhtyārī.

328. The Geographical Section of the General Staff of the Persian Army (Dāyirah i Jughrāfiyā'ī i Sitād i Artish) under the superintendence of its chief (Ra'īs), General Ḥusain-'Alī Razmārā,[4] and with the collaboration of numerous officers,[5] whose names are recorded in the prefaces, has prepared and published :

[1] " Who has lived for thirty years in this country, and for the last seventeen years has been in charge of the Church of St. Simon the Zealot, one of the most beautiful buildings in Shiraz, purely Persian in style and character " (from 'Alī Sāmī's introduction to Sharp's translation of Takht i Jamshīd, no. (3) below). Crockford describes him as " C.M.S. Miss. at Yezd 1924–37 ; Shiraz, Dio. Iran, from 1937 ".

[2] 'Alī Sāmī, however, had in preparation a Sharh i mufaṣṣal i āthār i Takht i Jamshīd, which he hoped shortly to publish (see the list of his works on the back of the front cover of his Āthār i bāstānī i julgah i Marw-dasht).

[5] One of these, Colonel Aḥmad Iḥtisābiyān, Mu'āwin i Idārah i Kār-guzīnī i Artish (see Farhang . . ., i p. [iii]) has already been mentioned in this survey (PL. ii p. 174). Another work of his, Jughrāfiyā-yi kishwarhā-yi Āsiyā-yi Gharbī u [sic.?] ham-jiwār i Īrān (Tihrān. No date ?) is mentioned in Farhang i Īrān-zamīn i/1 (1332/1953) p. 27.

Farhang i jughrāfiyā'ī i Īrān (ābādīhā),[1] a dictionary in ten volumes, each devoted to a single ustān,[2] under which the places are arranged in alphabetical order with information concerning the pronunciation of the name (indicated by a transliteration in the roman character,[3] except in vol. i, where only 98 names [4] are so transliterated at the end of the volume) and other matters up to twenty-five in number (listed in vol. i p. [vi]), such as position, population, industry, climate, historic buildings and crops (unfortunately without any general index to the whole work) : [Tihrān] A.H.S. 1328–32/1949–53‡ (10 vols. Folding maps of the shahristāns and, from vol. iv onwards, views of ancient buildings, etc. Az intishārāt i Dāyirah i Jughrāfiyā'ī i Sitād i Artish. Chāp-khānah i Artish. See Wilber p. 276 ; Farhang i Īrān-zamīn ii (1333/1954–5) p. 290 (a review of vol. x (Iṣfahān, Yazd)) ; BSOAS. xix/1 (1957) pp. 58–9 (a description by V. Minorsky)).

Other publications of the Geographical Section are :

(1) Rāh-numā-yi Hamadān, prepared for the millenary of Ibn Sīnā by Muṣṭafawī (cf. p. 187 infra), Jawād Kāmbīz

[1] It is, or was, the intention of the Geographical Section of the General Staff to publish, after the completion of this Farhang dealing with the ābādīhā, or inhabited localities, a Farhang i jughrāfiyā'ī i 'umūmī i Īrān devoted not only to inhabited localities but also to natural features such as rivers, mountains, lakes, etc. (see vol. iv, preface, ll. 8–12).

[2] Except vol. iv (Āḏharbāyjān), which deals with ustāns 3 and 4. Vols. i–iii deal respectively with the ustān i markazī, ustān 1 and ustān 2. From vol. v onwards the volume numbers coincide with the official numbers of the ustāns.

[3] This transliteration, which is the same as that used in the Farhang i Nafīsī, successfully indicates the pronunciation (and in the case of the vowels the spelling also, both exactly and neatly, with the help of only one mark of quantity, the circumflex accent on â. So far as the consonants are concerned, the pronunciation is indicated, but not necessarily the spelling, since only one roman letter is used to represent two or more Arabic letters pronounced alike in Persian, q, for example, standing for both qāf and ghain). The unfortunate c represents shīn, and consequently Shīrāz appears as cirâz. A curious feature of this transliteration is that the iḍāfat seems to be entirely ignored, even in cases where its presence or absence does not appear to be obvious. The pronunciations indicated have not in all cases escaped criticism from persons with local knowledge (cf. PL. ii p. 190 ult.).

[4] Which do not include Brghān (i.e. Baraghān, bā dū fatḥah, according to M. 'Alī " Mudarris " Tabrīzī Khiyābānī's Raiḥānat al-adab i p. 152) and other names of which the pronunciation is unlikely to be guessed correctly. Baraghānī has unfortunately been spelt Burghānī, which should now be corrected, in PL. i pp. 223, 1128 n.4, 1264 (cf. Tārīkh i jadīd, tr. E. G. Browne, p. 454b[14], and Edwards col. 527[22], in both of which places the word is spelled Burqānī).

(Mudīr i Dā'irah i Ḥaffārī u Āṯhār i Millī dar Idārah i Kull i Bāstān-shināsī (see Muṣṭafawī's Hagmatānah, preface, p. xi), doubtless the same person as Dj.
